Hoover Plurality Over Gov. Smith Was 6,423,612

Total Vote Cast in Recent Election Was Largest in History of United States, Showing 25 Per Cent Increase Over 1924—South Increased Its Vote Approximately One-third.

(Copyright, 1928, by The Associated Press.)

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP).—Herbert Hoover's plurality over Governor Smith in the November election was 6,423,612.

Figures gathered by the Associated Press from the election officials of the 48 states show these totals:

Hoover, 21,429,109.

Smith, 15,005,497.

The total vote cast, the largest in the history of the United States, was 36,798,669.

The votes not accounted for in the Hoover and Smith columns went to minor parties. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, received the majority of these votes, polling 267,835. Foster, Workers Party candidate, got 48,228, and Reynolds, Socialist-Labor, 21,181. Varney, Prohibitionist candidate, got almost as many as Reynolds, 20,101 and Webb, Farmer-Labor, 5,331.

Mr. Hoover's plurality did not reach the figures registered for President Coolidge in 1924, although the former secretary of commerce polled a much larger vote. In that year Mr. Coolidge received 15,725,016 votes, giving him a lead of 7,338,513 over John W. Davis, Democratic nominee. The Lafollette-Wheeler Independent ticket, however, had 4,822,856 votes.

Smith Exceeded Vote for Davis.

Hoover carried 40 states as against 27 carried by President Coolidge four years ago. Pennsylvania gave him his largest majority, 987,796, while Governor Smith's largest plurality was in Louisiana where he had a lead of 113,594. While overwhelmed both in the popular vote and in the electoral college, Governor Smith's total was more than six million higher than the 8,386,503 cast for Mr. Davis in 1924.

Mr. Hoover's vote was higher in every state than that of Mr. Coolidge four years ago with the exception of Rhode Island. This held true in President Coolidge's home state of Massachusetts which was carried by Governor Smith. The Governor's total was less than the Democratic figures of four years ago in New Mexico, Tennessee and Texas, notwithstanding the large increase in the number of ballots cast.

The Hoover column shows he received more than a million votes in five states—California, Illinois, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Governor Smith reached the million mark in Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania.

Vote in Solid South.

States of the once solid south recorded 3,004,145 votes for the two major party candidates, almost a million less than cast in New York state for Mr. Hoover and Governor Smith. Hoover polled 1,406,488 of these and Smith 1,597,657 in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and North Carolina all of whom had supported the Democratic presidential candidate since reconstruction days until the present election.

Mr. Hoover's southern vote was more than double that of Mr. Coolidge four years ago and almost twice the combined figures for the President and Senator LaFollette that year. It came within 91,000 votes of equalling Mr. Davis's total in the same territory.

Vote Jumps in Four Years.

The vote of 36,798,669 showed a big jump over the figures for 1924, when 29,091,417 persons cast ballots in the presidential race. This increase was especially reflected in the south, Alabama as an example recording 248,981 ballots as against 166,593 four years ago. Other states in various sections showed a similar result.

The increase for the nation as a whole over 1924 was slightly more than 25 per cent. In the south the figures were approximately 33⅓ per cent higher than they were four years ago.

Satisfaction Over King's Condition

Passed Restful Night and No Appreciable Change Noted, Says Physicians' Bulletin—Briefest Bulletin Yet Issued.

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—Today's bulletin from Buckingham Palace on King George, one of the briefest yet issued, brought the satisfactory news that he had passed a restful night calculated to help in building up his strength from the extreme exhaustion caused by his prolonged and grave illness.

The bulletin, taken in the light of optimistic report by the King's physicians, was felt to indicate that there was nothing appreciable to add to what on the whole was considered a favorable situation. This morning's bulletin read:

"The King has had a restful night. There is no appreciable change to be noted."

The view in palace circles, it was learned, coincided with the public impression from the bulletin, that His Majesty is continuing to gain slowly. His physicians, it was indicated, are satisfied with the course that events are taking. They are not expected to make any further statement on the King's case until the usual hour for the night bulletin.

While the physicians were attending His Majesty in the sick chamber, the council of state which was appointed to act for the King during his illness held a brief privy council in another part of the palace.

Others beside the councillors who attended the council meeting were Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary; Walter Guinness, Minister of Agriculture; The Earl of Cromer, Lord Chamberlain, and Maurice Hankey, Clerk of the Council.

Lord Dawson of Penn held a brief consultation with Sir Stanley Hewett at Buckingham Palace this afternoon. No further statement regarding King George's condition was issued.

Actor Reveals Tragedy in Will

Remembers Neither Affection Nor Sympathy from Family Until His Achievements Made Affection a Part of Pride in Relationship.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 21 (AP).—The death of Theodore Roberts, "Grand Old Man" of the stage and screen, has lifted the curtain on a secret of his life.

His will, made public here today, reveals that he left his estate, valued at "more than $10,000" to his nephew, Edward Roberts Higgins of New York city, with the explanation that Higgins had "suffered like him" as an exile from home.

"In my experience I remember neither affection nor sympathy from any member of my family until such accomplishment had been achieved by me that affection became a part of pride in relationship", Roberts said in the will, which was made here September 11, 1926.

"During the darkest hour of my life no word of sympathy or offer of help from any member of my family came to me, and I hungered for it as the wanderer in the desert thirsts for water. The pride that kept me silent as a neglected and unwanted child stayed with me through life, through many vicissitudes, and kept me silent even while in a prison cell.

"Now that I am beyond the influence of all earthly things, I want these words said. If they leave any unpleasant atmosphere over my memory, so be it."

Only one member of his family, Higgins, shared "a kindred isolation from the family", Roberts related in the will. Higgins was designated to be the executor without bond.

Roberts asked to be buried here beside his second wife but made no reference to his first wife except indirectly. Roberts served six months in prison in New York when he could not pay alimony to the first Mrs. Roberts, who had divorced him.

Winter Arrives At Niagara Falls

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—The first day of winter was announced to the Niagara Peninsula this morning with the first heavy snow storm of the season. Beginning early last evening swirling snow squalls blanketed the city of Niagara Falls before midnight and outlying sections were heavily drifted.

Motorists drove about the city with their windshields thickly covered with ice and snow. The temperature at 9 a. m. today was 12 degrees. Precipitation was about four and a half inches.

Explosion Traps 63 Miners.

Tokyo, Dec. 21 (AP).—Sixty-three miners were trapped today by an explosion in the Harutori coal mine near Kushiro, Yezo Island. Fire followed the explosion and the fate of the miners could not be determined.

Considering New Treaty With U. S.

Britain Has New Arbitration Pact Under Consideration But Has Not Yet Reached Conclusion Enabling Further Procedure.

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—The British government has under consideration a new arbitration treaty with the United States.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, told the House of Commons that the government, however, had not yet reached a conclusion which would enable it to proceed further in the negotiations. He explained that he had desired the old arbitration treaty extended to cover the time needed for consideration of the new proposals.

These new proposals, he said, had come as a surprise since previously he had been informed that the American government intended no change, but merely a renewal of the old treaty.

Referring to Anglo-American relations, Sir Austen said he profoundly regretted that a "little cloud" had come over them recently. But he refused to believe that between the two nations, so peacefully minded and so friendly to one another, passing differences were going to create any permanent disturbance of relations.

There was another very relevant treaty still in force, Sir Austen continued, namely the Bryan-Spring-Rice conciliation treaty. His impression was that it was probable that in future relations between the two countries conciliation machinery would be used more than the terms of any arbitration treaty.

Sir Austen explained that before the British government could deal with the matter of a new arbitration treaty, the proposal of a pact outlawing war was made and it seemed desirable to conclude negotiations on that point and put aside for the time being resumption of negotiations regarding the arbitration treaty.

Similar to Treaty With France.

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP).—Negotiations for a new arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain have been under way for almost a year. The draft of the new treaty was submitted to Sir Esme Howard here last December. It was identical with that submitted to France, since signed and ratified.

The new treaty was formulated by Scretary Kellogg in his plan to make the Root arbitration treaties broader in scope. The Root treaty with Great Britain lapsed June 4, and no effort was made to renew it because of the negotiations in progress for the broader Kellogg treaty.

The delay in concluding the negotiations for the new treaty has been explained by Sir Esme Howard by the fact that the British government has needed time to consult the self-governing dominions. No indication of any hitch in the negotiations has been disclosed and state department officials have been expecting its conclusion and signature at any time.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE AT ELLENVILLE RESTAURANT.

A fire at the Shamrock restaurant in Ellenville was preceded by an explosion early Monday morning which filled the street with shattered glass. The explosion was heard by Nightwatchman Dick Porter and he promptly called the firemen.

The fire had evidently started in the cellar, but the explosion had proven so effective that it was discovered in time and brought under control by the fire department of the village. The restaurant was supposed to be vacant as it was closed several weeks ago by the owner, Mrs. Lillian Schiff, who is now operating a restaurant at Eustis, Florida.

Investigation of the building showed that several of the beds in the rooms above the restaurant had recently been used, and several empty whiskey bottles were found in the cellar and there were many dirty plates and cooking utensils found on the tables on the first floor of the building.

Chief Fischer has sent for an agent of the National Board of Fire Underwriters of New York to investigate the cause of the fire. Mrs. Schiff has also been notified of the fire.

SPEEDERS MUST VISIT CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SCHOOL

Rochester, Dec. 21 (AP).—A visit to the school for crippled children in the company of a uniformed policeman or the payment of a stiff fine awaits all Rochester motorists convicted of speeding in school zones.

This was the policy inaugurated in city court today by Judge Arthur L. Wilder in passing sentence on Norman T. Sprague, who pleaded guilty to speeding through a school zone "in order to get out of it." Sprague was taken to the school in a police car and escorted through the rooms by a police officer and policewoman.

DISTRIBUTES GOLD TO INSTITUTION INMATES

Binghamton, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—George F. Johnson, head of a shoe corporation, played the part of Santa Claus by distributing approximately $5,600 in gold among inmates of public institutions yesterday.

Among those benefited were 253 inmates of the Broome County Farm, 104 Patients at the Broome County Tuberculosis Hospital and inmates of other homes, each receiving a ten dollar gold piece.

Quick Is Held For Grand Jury

Grand Larceny Charge Lodged Against Walden Man, Alleged to Have Stolen Car Here—Arrested at Ogdensburg and Is Brought Back to Kingston.

Harry D. Quick of 59 Orchard street, Walden, arrested at Ogdensburg on a charge of grand larceny in stealing the Essex car of Rudolph Brauneiser, which was parked in the driveway at 455 Albany avenue, was brought back to Kingston shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and later was arraigned before Judge A. H. Van Buren in police court. Quick waived examination and was held for the grand jury, bail being fixed at $1,000.

The arrest of Quick is the climax of the story of the transfer of license plates from a Ford car to an Essex car, just over the city line on Albany avenue on Sunday night. The Ford car was then abandoned and is now in possession of Sheriff Rice.

When the police received word from Mr. Brauneiser that his Essex car had been stolen from Albany avenue they broadcast a description of the car, and Tuesday evening received word from the Ogdensburg police that they held the car and driver. The car when recovered bore California license plates. It was stated by the Ogdensburg police that Quick had confessed to stealing the Essex car and that he had abandoned his Ford car at Kingston.

Officer Soper was detailed to go to Ogdensburg after Quick and the stolen car and was accompanied by Mr. Brauneiser. They reached Ogdensburg Thursday morning, making the trip by train. They left there at 1 o'clock that afternoon, arriving here shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The return trip was made in the Essex car with the owner driving.

They found the roads around Ogdensburg covered with snow to a depth of five inches and a large part of the way into Utica they drove through a blinding snow storm on Thursday.

Verdict of $210 For Stucco Job

Plaintiff Recovers Verdict in Supreme Court for Work Performed on Port Ewen Residence—Owner Claimed Job Was Not Good.

A verdict in the sum of $210 was returned Thursday afternoon in the action brought by the Troy Magnesite Products, Inc., against Mrs. Mary Stockton of Port Ewen. L. E. Countryman of this city, president of the corporation, sued to recover $210 alleged due on a stucco job on the Stockton house at Port Ewen. Defendant alleged that the job was not a good one and refused to pay the balance on a $610 job. She produced experts who testified the job was a poor one but that $300 would put the job in first class condition. A counterclaim for that amount was brought by the defendant who also sought to prove damages by showing by real estate experts what the present value of the place was and what it would be if the job had been a good one. They testified that the difference in value was $1,000 but Judge Russell struck out this testimony on the grounds that it was not the measure of damages.

Countryman, who has had wide experience in stucco work, testified that the job was a good one and that there had developed cracks in the stucco because the concrete block foundation had settled and cracked. He did not lay the foundation and claimed therefore that he was not responsible for any damage done the stucco job by reason of poor workmanship on other parts of the contract. Chris J. Flanagan and Arthur B. Ewig appeared for the plaintiff and A. J. Cook for defendant.

Zero Weather In Middle West

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP).—Winter came to the Middle West today just as the almanac said it would.

Winter officially begins at 8:04 p. m., tonight, but for the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and parts of Canada it already has become established.

Devil's Lake, N. D., had a minimum of 18 below yesterday and at Bismarck, N. D., the mercury fell to six below. St. Paul experienced a low temperature of four below while Duluth and Moorehead, Minn., each recorded readings of eight below. Zero weather gripped La Crosse, Wis., and The Pas, Man., shivered in 30 below weather.

Chicago had the coldest day since last winter yesterday when snow flurries and bitter winds sent the mercury down to seven degrees above at 9 p. m.

More snow was accompanied by a slight temperature rise over most of the Rocky Mountain section.

Three deaths in Chicago were attributed to the cold and police reported caring for 250 other men and women forced into the various stations for shelter. Three degrees above zero was the lowest temperature recorded in Chicago early today.

President Signs Boulder Dam Bill

But Either Utah or Arizona Must Ratify Colorado River Compact on Distribution of Water Before Act Can Become Effective.

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP).—President Coolidge today signed the Boulder Dam bill making effective the act providing for reclamation, flood control and power project on the Colorado river.

The President affixed his signature before a gathering of proponents of the Swing-Johnson bill, who were brought to the executive office by Senator Johnson and Representative Swing, California Republicans, who for years had led the fight for enactment of the bill.

The measure provides that the government shall supply the $165,000,000 estimated as necessary to construct a dam and accompanying works in Black Canyon. The money is to be repaid under an amortization plan from proceeds of the sale of power.

The signature of the President was the last official act required in providing federal authority for the construction, but either Utah or Arizona of the seven Colorado river basin states must ratify the Colorado river compact on distribution of water before the act can become effective.

The long fight in congress came to its end earlier in the week when the house accepted senate amendments to the measure. The senate passed the bill December 14.

Arizona Has Fought Legislation.

A most determined fight against the Boulder Dam legislation had been waged in congress by Arizona since its inception. Senators Ashurst and Hayden, Democrats, of that state, and Representative Douglas, another Democrat, bearing the brunt of all opposition. The Arizona senators both played prominent parts in the filibuster waged against the measure in the senate last spring.

Only yesterday the Arizona legislature passed a memorial addressed to President Coolidge requesting him to veto the bill. Just as Ashurst and Hayden had held in arguing against it, the memorial termed the bill unconstitutional "in that it attempts to allocate waters of the Colorado river belonging to the state of Arizona without the consent of Arizona." The memorial also protested that enactment of the bill "would result in the reclamation of land in Mexico and forever deprive arid lands in the United States of water essential to their development."

Provides for Huge Dam.

The bill calls for the harnessing of the Colorado river at the Black Canyon site by a dam nearly twice as high as any existing, to impound millions of acre feet of water which would be used to bring under cultivation wide expanses of arid southwestern lands. This dam would provide electric power to miles in several neighboring states.

The reservoir would have an estimated capacity of 26,000,000 acre feet of water, and the power machinery on which this would be used is expected to develop approximately 1,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy. Of this, 550,000 horsepower would be "firm power." Upon this basis, it has been estimated that the entire cost would be returned to the government with interest within 50 years.

After construction the dam, the bill authorizes construction of modern flood control works around the rim of the imperial valley. Following this the bill stipulates construction of an all-American canal between the river and Imperial Valley. At present, the valley is irrigated by a canal branching off the Colorado river which runs to a large extent through Mexican territory.

AGED AND BLIND WIFE WAITED FOR DEAD HUSBAND

Rochester, Dec. 21 (AP).—While an aged and blind wife waited for two days and a night for the return of her husband, his body lay unidentified in the morgue, shattered as a result of his plunge from Driving Park Avenue bridge to the rocks of the Genesee river gorge 212 feet below.

The body was identified last night by a son of Mrs. James S. Lawrence, who visited his parent's home only to find that his father had not been home for two days. He recalled the unidentified suicide of Wednesday morning and identified the body at the morgue as that of his father, James S. Lawrence, 66.

He died on the way to a hospital.

The banquet was held to celebrate the paying off of the mortgage. McLaughlin was toastmaster. He was a charter member of the Keystone fire company in 1897.

Peacemaker Gets Verdict of $1,500

Was Assaulted When He Attempted to Settle Dispute Between Two Men—Action for Damages Undefended in Supreme Court.

That the job of peacemaker is not always pleasant was demonstrated in Supreme court Thursday afternoon when Lester Norton brought an action to recover $10,000 damages from John Crosby for an alleged assault in a soft drink emporium on Foxhall avenue last July 7.

Norton, who resides on Derrenbacher street, stated that he had been in a soft drink place when a couple of men entered, there were words between a man named Otis and John Crosby. Norton stepped over to where Crosby was striking Otis and attempted to act as peacemaker. His "Wait a minute Jack," to Crosby, he said, was replied to by a blow to the jaw which knocked the plaintiff to the floor. While he was on the floor, Norton testified, Crosby jumped on him and when he arose again he was again struck down and this time he became unconscious. He was taken to the hospital where Dr. Chester A. Van Gaasbeck treated him for a fractured leg and dislocated ankle as well as for cuts and bruises.

Prior to the assault by Crosby the plaintiff stated he had been employed as a painter, earning an average of $24 a week. For three months he was laid up and could not work. Then he started to work and found he could not climb a ladder or carry on his usual occupation so he took a job at $16.50 a week and he now sought to recover damages for loss of time, loss of wages and for his pain, suffering, doctor's bill and hospital bill.

Lloyd R. LeFever who appeared for Norton in the undefended action stated that when the complaint had been drawn Norton was in a serious condition and was compelled to go about on crutches. Since that time he had improved and although $10,000 was mentioned in the original complaint he deemed $3,500 a reasonable amount to award Norton in his present condition. Dr. Van Gaasbeck testified that Norton would suffer pain for at least a couple of years as a result of his injuries.

A verdict in the sum of $1,500 was awarded plaintiff.

Used A Shingle To Keep Accounts

Accounting Covered Period of Three Years and Shingle Disappeared About the Time Accord Farm Hand Was Seeking Work Elsewhere.

An action for services rendered was taken up for trial in the Supreme court Thursday afternoon. This action is a peculiar one in that the plaintiff cannot speak English and also by reason of the fact that he is unable to figure and consequently has no record of the wages due him other than in a general way. The plaintiff, Joseph Nagy, a Hungarian, gave his testimony through an interpreter.

Plaintiff alleged that for three years he worked for Louis Luider of Accord as a farm hand and that during that time all the wages he received was an occasional dollar or two with a promise of the rest of the money at some future time. Nagy met the defendant in Brooklyn and went to Accord to work. For three years he continued to work at Accord without, as he claims, getting paid. He claims he was to receive $30 a month during the winter months and $45 a month in the summer.

From time to time when he was paid a few dollars he kept track of it on a shingle in the granary but just before he gave up in despair at not getting paid and sought work elsewhere, he claims the shingle disappeared and he consequently lost his simple memorandum of what wages he has been paid. He alleged that during the three years he earned $1,395 and that he believes he was paid about $200 during that time. He seeks to recover $1,195.

The defendant claims he paid all of the wages due.

Cleon B. Murray appears for plaintiff and Vernon Kelder for defendant. The case was continued today.

Santa Instead of King Neptune Will Board Hoover Ship

U. S. S. Utah Reaches Rio Janeiro Where President-elect Will Remain Through Sunday—Brazilian Government to Pay Him Unusual Honors—Plans Under Way for Christmas Aboard Ship.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 21 (AP).—The U. S. S. Utah, bearing President-elect Hoover on his good will tour, entered the harbor shortly after noon today.

Bearing messages of greeting from the people of the largest North American republic to those of the largest South American republic, President-elect Hoover reached today the grand finale of his Latin-American good will tour—a visit to Rio De Janeiro, where he will remain through Sunday.

Unusual honors will be paid Mr. Hoover by the Brazilian government. President Luis will have him and his party as guests at the presidential palace while congress and the supreme court will hold special sessions at which leaders of the nation will speak. Mr. Hoover will reply briefly to each address, reserving his principal declaration of friendship between Brazil and the United States for the response to President Luis' toast tomorrow night at the official banquet.

As the Utah neared the beautiful Brazilian capital, she found the cruisers Bahia and Rio Grande waiting as an escort. The Brazilian squadron was commanded by Captain Gomen Soro, with temporary rank of commodore, who flies his flag on the Bahia. The cruisers flanked the Utah which had been ordered to fire a national salute on arriving at Rio De Janiero harbor around noon today.

Shore leave will be granted officers and crew of the Utah during the stay in Rio.

It was announced that after the Utah delivers the Hoover party at Key West about January 6, she will join the Atlantic squadron fleet north of Cuba and proceed to Panama for manoeuvers, proceeding to Boston early in April for her annual overhauling.

Present Quarters More Restricted.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover find themselves at home aboard ship and while the quarters are more restricted than on the Maryland, they are faring well, as they are situated above decks forward where there is plenty of air obtainable. This is particularly desirable because of the intense heat they will encounter when they cross the equator.

Making their first visit to Rio, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will spend much of their time visiting beauty spots in the ancient city where the Portugese first landing in 1500. This part of the program has been arranged by the Brazilian officials, who are proud of the scenic wonders of their city and the surrounding country. Save for the exchange of greetings and a private dinner at the presidential palace today, the formal functions will be crowded into Saturday with Sunday left for motor excursions.

Santa Will Visit Ship

Santa Claus instead of King Neptune will climb aboard the battleship Utah to greet Herbert Hoover as he nears the Equator on Christmas Day.

The crossing of that figurative dividing line of the world this time by the President-elect will be on his homeward journey from his goodwill mission to South America. Santa Claus probably will be more welcome than the king of the seas on the Utah, although he will be received with less ostentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will make the final preparations for Christmas during their stay at Rio de Janeiro. Their final purchases of gifts will be made there, although Mrs. Hoover already has secured many presents in Buenos Aires and Montevideo.

May Rig Up Palm Tree

If anything that resembles a Christmas tree is found in Rio de Janeiro it will be taken aboard the battleship. But it has been suggested that since the day will be celebrated in tropical waters it would be more appropriate to have a palm tree rigged up with yuletide decorations for the celebration.

The President-elect and Mrs. Hoover will entertain all the members of their party and the ship's officers at a Christmas dinner served at a large table on the deck if the weather permits and the members of the party are hoping for a continuation of the perfect climatic conditions which have prevailed since the Utah's departure from Montevideo.

The Utah's crew will have a Christmas dinner with turkey, mince pie and other dishes which make up a typical American meal on that day. Holiday hours will prevail on the ship and there will be entertainment.

Two Alarms of Fire.

The fire department was called out twice; once about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon when a false alarm was turned in from Box 22, and again on a still alarm at 1:40 o'clock this morning for a dump fire on Howland avenue.

Several Large Barges Stranded

Whitehall, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—Several large barges were stranded here a few days ago when the water in the Champlain division of the Barge Canal was drawn off for the winter.

The water was left in the canal several days longer than usual to enable two barges to get back to Glens Falls for loads of cement to be used in the new bridge across Lake Champlain between Crown Point and Chimney Point, Vt. Cold weather set in too suddenly to permit further navigation, however, and the two barges are among those icebound here until next spring.

Raps Advice Of Henry Ford

Binghamton, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—The statement of Henry Ford, the automobile magnate, in a recent interview that "No successful boy ever saved any money", brought prompt criticism from George F. Johnson, widely-known shoe manufacturer of this city.

"That's not good advice", Mr. Johnson. "It has taken nearly 2,000 years since the birth of Jesus Christ to develop the United States of America. Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison.

"My advice to boys and girls is to save their money. If they wait 2,000 years to become a Ford or an Edison, they will need some money. They can save it while they are young, to make them comfortable when they are old.

"Thrift is one of the best habits. Prepare for a rainy day is good advice. You can scarcely hope to be a Ford, and you will hardly be able to be an Edison, but you can be an independent, forehanded citizen, the head of a family and a home owner."

SEASONAL CHEER

It's Christmas in China, it's Christmas in Spain,
It's Christmas for Turkoman, Dervish and Dane,
It's Christmas in Greenland, in clean and obscene land,
It's Christmas all over from Dover to Maine.

It's Christmas in Cuba and also Bermuda,
At Lido, Kingston, St. Paul and St. James,
It's Christmas in Paraguay, Uruguay, fire away;
We've got an atlas that's chock full of names.

This concept is cheering when Christmas bills, leering,
Dismay the gift shopper, and fill him with woe.
For out of the masses of all sorts and classes
You only buy presents for those whom you know.

A friend in need should have saved his money and he wouldn't be that way.

Nearly everybody had a breakfast room in the old days, but it was called a kitchen.

When Dreams Come True.

I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls;
So wide, so cold, so tall;
(Apartment houses as you know,
Have marble in the hall).

I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls;
And that is not surprising;
My wife had locked me out all night,
I found upon arising.

While not so many are afflicted with the love of money is a far worse case than the love of whiskey.

He Went About Doing Good.

Among my friends I count Roman Catholics and Protestants, Jews and Gentiles. Some of them have allied themselves with church organizations, and some have not; but they all "go about doing good". I call to mind particularly one of my Jewish friends who is devoting much of his time, his energy and his money in the interests of crippled children. Due to heredity and environment, we may theologically disagree touching many things; but I honor him as a man and greatly value his friendship, because he is always "going about doing good".

And so, as the Christmas season approaches, you and I visualize the Man of Galilee as one who preached and who practiced good will to all mankind. He was a Man among men. He was forceful and energetic. He realized that in this workaday world there are physical as well as mental and spiritual needs, and while ignoring none of them, he never overlooked an opportunity to "do good".

My wish then, my earnest and sincere Christmas wish, is that you and I, as busy business men, may be imbued with the spirit of the Master, who went about doing good. In addition to that, I, personally, wish for you all of the joy and pleasures that can come to you from Christmas contact with family and friends.

If you want to give a girl a perfectly useless present this Christmas give her a suit of good, warm underwear.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Merry Christmas, messieurs and madames,
Young masters and also young misses:
For your hurts may there always be balms,
For your love may there always be kisses.

Christmas comes but once a year but the instalment plan stretches it out for about 12 months.

So Prettily He Wags His Tail.

I like to see a little dog,
I neither hate nor fear him:
And when he barks and whines all night
I'd rather see than hear him.

Blue Monday is caused by making Sunday a red letter day for eating and sleeping.

Never Thought Any Medicine Would Help Her Like Nu-Erb Did

This Lady Declares It Brought Prompt Relief To Long Standing Illness.

Scores of local men and women are daily calling on the Nu-Erb man at McBride Drug Store, 212 Wall street to tell of the wonderful benefits they have received through the use of this remarkable medicine. Take for example the recent statement of Mrs. George Taylor, West Camp, N. Y., (near Kingston) "I never thought that any medicine would help me like Nu-Erb did," said Mrs. Taylor.

"Before I started using this medicine I suffered continually from indigestion and a distressing gas in my stomach from which I could get no relief. I constantly had a dull, aching pain across my back which I believe was caused by my kidneys. I was subject to severe dizzy spells, sick headaches and bilious attacks. I became extremely nervous and rheumatism developed in the joints of my limbs and ankles.

"Since taking Nu-Erb I am feeling one hundred per cent better in every way. My food now digests without forming gas or souring. I no longer get those dreaded dizzy spells, spots before my eyes or headaches. My nerves are stronger. I sleep better at night and the rheumatic condition has so improved that my joints and muscles are no longer sore or swollen."

Sufferers from stomach disorders, weakened kidneys, sluggish livers, constipation, nervousness, headaches or rheumatic pains would do well to follow Mrs. Taylor's example and give Nu-Erb a trial. It is a pure compound of nature's own herbs, roots, barks and leaves so formulated to give quick relief to such ailments and help sufferers.

McBride Drug Store, 212 Wall street is headquarters in Kingston for Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

THE POWER COMMISSION.

We have a Federal Power Commission, but it is handicapped by the lack of a field staff, Congress three years in succession having ignored the request for permission to employ one. The Commission was created by Congress in 1920 to administer the law governing the use of all the vast water power within the control of the Federal government, and the situation in which it now finds itself is thus outlined: "One important part of its duties consists of inquiring into the financial arrangements of applicants for the use of power, the cost of construction of their projects and the items which they enter into their fixed capital accounts. These matters are of immense importance to millions of consumers of electric light and power, since they determine in large measure what rates shall be charged for service. Congress, however, neglected to give the commission any staff to perform the work of investigation, and since it was established the commission has had no experts save those it has been able to beg or borrow from other bureaus of the government. As a result, the commission frankly says it has been obliged to leave the greater part of its duties unperformed.'"

The situation is the more surprising in view of the fact that at present the commission pays its own way out of charges it collects from licenses and is only asking Congress to change the law so that it may employ an adequate staff of its own. Is Congress neglecting so important a matter year after year merely because of the pressure of other business or of an inexplicable lack of interest? Inevitably suspicion has found expression to the effect that leaders in Congress are influenced by powerful private interests opposed to an effective system.

THE FIRST SLAVE TRADER.

The master of an old-time slave ship having left aristocratic descendants in England, there is excited protest in that country now that Cunninghame Graham has described Sir John Hawkins in published matter as "cruel, bloodthirsty and greedy" and more. In response it is asserted that Hawkins "was no rough sea-dog, no pirate," and that "he taught Drake his seamanship but not his piratical methods." It is well established, however, that Hawkins would load up with negroes on the west coast of Africa and sell them for hides, ginger, sugar, pearls, etc., in the West Indies. He landed a shipload of negroes at the Spanish settlement of St. Augustine in our Florida late in the sixteenth century, these being the first slaves to be received into territory afterward a part of the United States.

Even if never a "pirate," Hawkins was a slave trader and the first of his period. But, after all, what of it? Had not the courts of his country declared negroes to be "merchandise"? Did not this "right worshipful and valiant knight" have the commission of Queen Elizabeth, and, for having "opened a new trade" to England, did not the same Queen entitle him to bear as his crest "a Moor or negro bound with a cord"? Whatever his methods—and inevitably they involved cruelty—Sir John Hawkins was a respectable citizen in his day, and his aristocratic descendants have little, if any, more to be ashamed of than have the descendants of the "robber barons" of a rude and blood-letting age.

BIRTH CERTIFICATES

Since the World War birth certificates have acquired a greater importance than they ever had before. An American born and bred, with native ancestors for generations behind him, must produce a birth certificate if he wishes to travel abroad, for otherwise he will fail to secure an official passport and when he returns to his own country he is likely to receive the rude handling of an immigrant without quota qualifications who is trying to sneak into this land of promise. A curiously interesting case of a respectable American who is in trouble because he can not obtain a certificate of his birth has just been brought to public attention. It appears that Ralph R. Heard, aged 41, a prominent architect of Boston, was legally adopted from an orphan asylum by a family of Weston, Mass. Although he served 22 months as a lieutenant in the American army in France, the State Department now refuses to issue him a passport to go abroad because he is unable to furnish documentary evidence of his birth.

He has tried for years to procure such evidence, it is stated, but has failed owing to the practice of orphanages and other such institutions of withholding all information as to a child's origin on the assumption that such child when adopted will be better off if all the bridges behind it have been burned. The inevitable conclusion is that in view of present day necessities orphanages would do well to abandon their old policy. It is also pertinent to remark that in such a case as that of Mr. Heard, in view of his known history, and in order to prevent hardship entirely unjust, the State Department should find it possible to see its way to relax or modify its rigid rules.

The first book printed on paper made from cornstalks has appeared. Special editions of the Prairie Farmer and of the Danville, Ill., Commercial News, likewise printed on cornstalk paper, are to follow promptly. If cornstalks can be successfully used on a large scale in this way vast waste will be avoided and a great new gain accomplished.

Doubtless it is somewhat disturbing to seekers after political plums to reflect that Mr. Hoover may have acquired methods considerably less than lavish while food administrator in war time.

VICTORIES FOR INSULIN.

You have likely noticed one of your friends gradually putting on weight and feeling very well for a time, and you learn that he had developed that dread ailment—diabetes.

What is the cause of this increase in weight, and well being, and then the loss of weight and fatigue?

Dr. F. Fonseca investigated this and tells us that very thin folks, treated with insulin, quickly gain in weight, not because the cells retain more weight, but because the digestive system works so well that it is able to store fat in the system from the food eaten. He thinks therefore that most cases of overweight are due to the fact that the pancreas manufactures too much insulin.

In diabetes, owing to the fact that the pancreas has been doing so much work, it gets exhausted, and then does not manufacture enough; hence there is the loss of weight, because the diabetes patient must now produce sugar from his own fat, and not from the food eaten.

Dr. De Anclaes has found that insulin has a stimulating effect on the hydrochloric acid manufactured in the stomach, also on the movements of the stomach, and increases the amount of gastric juice.

What does this mean?

That if your pancreas is secreting a goodly amount of insulin that it will so strengthen the ability of the stomach to get most out of the food, that in addition to being sufficient to make blood and do the other work of the body, there will be some left over to be stored as fat.

Now while most folks are not wanting to store fat in the body, there are a great many individuals who need this extra amount of weight.

How is this knowledge going to help humanity?

Insulin will be used in selected cases to build up a tired thin, worn out body. It will be used in undernourished children also. When Banting determined to seek the cause of diabetes, and gave us insulin as the cure, he gave other research men a substance with which to experiment and the results have been of tremendous value to suffering humanity.

A Little Thing Like Clothes

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

"THAT," said Tom Winship, knocking the ash from his cigarette, "is the primmest girl in this town."

They both looked after the retreating figure of Daisy Miller, dressed so neatly in her blue serge, with a black hat that was meant to cover, not adorn, the red-brown hair.

"If you give me a month I could have that girl so dead in love with me that anyone could see it!" Arthur Baldwin offered.

"You've lost already, and I'll put ten on it, Art."

Daisy Miller's heart beat very fast as she washed the dinner dishes. She had really not seen anything of Arthur Baldwin since they were in high school together; she had thought less of him, and yet tonight he had telephoned to ask if he could come to see her.

"I don't see why he should want to see me," she thought, "I can't understand—" and yet her heart fluttered strangely and she felt a new glow in the dullness of her gray days and a new romance in her life of monotony.

In her own room she surveyed her wardrobe critically. The gray challis was beyond redemption and her best crepe needed a patch under the arm; the only thing left was what she had on, the blue serge dress that had never been anything but useful.

Again she felt that strange new excitement when the bell wheezed and she opened the door to Arthur Baldwin. He stood a moment in the hall under the tiny blue flame of gas, retaining her hand.

"I am glad to see you, Daisy!" he said, scrutinizing her white face.

There was an awkward silence for a moment after he had seated himself in the comfortable living room in the big chair across from Mr. Miller.

"How're you getting on with your law?" old Mr. Miller gasped.

Arthur Baldwin found himself in the clutches of that inveterate old talker, and he listened to drowsy reminiscences of the '40s, while he fidgeted in his chair.

When at last he said good night he admitted it was one of the dullest evenings he had ever spent and quite unsuccessful except for his last remark to Daisy.

"You certainly have wonderful hair, Daisy," he said as he took her hand under the whimpering gas flame in the hall.

He smirked to himself as he remembered the slow, almost painful flush that touched her cheeks.

"I'm old enough to know better," Daisy thought next morning as she scanned the paper; but a new infection in the air had caught her and she explained to her father briefly that she was going to the city.

It must have been the hair that did it, but Daisy was unable to resist a hat that looked altogether alluring in one of the smartest shops on Fifth avenue.

But the hat made her suit look even older than ever; and Daisy plunged. She gasped when she saw herself in the new suit with its long, slim lines and its delicious golden brown color; with the bewitching hat. But how shabby her shoes looked.

As a very last touch she bought herself a new pair.

"It'll take me years to save it all again," Daisy thought shamefacedly. "All the money that I put by for a rainy day."

She settled herself down by the window in the train, feeling in her new clothes that she was too noticeable. She prayed that she would meet no one she knew. She moved over to the very margin of her seat as a big man sat down beside her; he looked at her casually and then cried, "Why, if it isn't Daisy Miller!"

"Mr. Armstrong!"

"I used to be Bill when we were in school together," he laughed.

Daisy looked up at him; perhaps it was the new hat, perhaps it was the consciousness of that smart suit, yet there was a charm about that shy, bird-like glance that touched William Armstrong.

"Just come back to civilization," he explained. "I'm going to surprise my people. It's a long run from Arizona to New York!"

"How wonderful!" Daisy exclaimed softly. "I've always thought that was about the most interesting place to live—" then for some unaccountable reason she blushed.

"Not for your kind!" Armstrong said gruffly.

He touched tentatively the rich fur on her cuff.

"Ah, this!" said Daisy, with disdain. "As if clothes matter!"

"When a girl's as pretty as you are, Daisy, I guess you're right!" he said heartily.

"I'd like to drop in and talk with you about God's country!" he said as he wrung her hand in farewell.

That was why two days later Daisy Miller, answering the telephone, said softly:

"I'm sorry, Mr. Baldwin, but I have another engagement tonight!"

"Congratulations!" Tom Winship cried, holding out his hand to his betting partner. "When it comes to a lady-killer, Art, I must admit you never fail." He pointed a jeering finger to the notice in the evening paper.

"The engagement of Miss Daisy Miller is announced to Mr. William Armstrong, of Tucson, Ariz."

Downtown Santa Visits School No. 1

Attends Christmas Party and Helps Amuse the Children—Interest Active as Time Draws Near for Somebody to Get Valuable Gift Presented by Downtown Association.

Downtown Santa Claus was missing for a short time this morning from the streets in the downtown section and before inquiry to the proper authorities was made it was believed that misfortune had fallen upon him, possibly he was abducted. However, Old St. Nick is still going strong and will be on the streets in the downtown section every afternoon and evening, visiting the stores and extending a kind invitation to all to pay him a visit and tell him of their needs.

The reason for the absence of the grand old man was due to the generosity of the Downtown Business Men's Association. There was a Christmas party at School No. 1 this morning and the downtown merchants were kind enough to send their Santa Claus to the party to amuse the children. With the presence of Kris Kringle at the school party there was considerably more of the good Christmas spirit in evidence.

Street Lighting.

One of the big features of the program prepared for shoppers in the downtown section is the street lighting that has attracted the eyes of the shoppers and many favorable comments have been received by the Downtown Business Men. The lighting adds to the colorful displays in the stores and success from this angle is assured. The displays in the store windows have been given much attention by the merchants and the result far eclipses all expectations.

The big community tree with its many lights also plays a big part in the observance of the holidays. The tree is the center of attraction for shoppers every evening.

Free Sellers Cabinet.

Saturday evening it is believed will be the outstanding evening for the Downtown Business Men's Association and the merchants have replenished their shelves in anticipation of a record number of shoppers. Along with the many bargains to be purchased there is still something bigger and better. It is a 48 inch Sellers Cabinet, which will be given free to some lucky person. In order to participate in this opportunity of getting this cabinet it is only necessary to visit one of the stores of the members of the Downtown Association.

Upon visiting the store you will be given a number and this number may win the cabinet. It is not necessary to make a purchase. The cabinet will be awarded Saturday evening at 9:30 o'clock under the big community Christmas tree. Numbers will be given tonight and early Saturday evening. The cabinet is now on display in the windows of Stock and Cordts.

SOLOISTS FOR CANTATA AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Mrs. Henry F. Dunbar, Mrs. William Mills, Miss Mildred Messinger, Ralph Martin, Henry F. Dunbar and Frank Finley will be the soloists at the five o'clock candlelight vesper service at the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Sunday, December 23. At this time the beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Incarnation" by Adam Geibel, will be sung. The cantata with its well arranged solos, duets and full choruses as well as a trio and two especially melodious choruses for male voices is of unusual beauty of harmony throughout. The choir will be composed of upwards of twenty voices, including a double male quartet. The public is cordially invited to attend this Christmas vesper service.

Aurora Borealis Noiseless?

The Carnegie Institution says that the dispute as to the aurora borealis making a noise is a moot question, but the evidence of most experienced observers is to the effect that there is no noise accompanying the polar light displays. Some observers claim to have heard a noise somewhat similar to a faint rustling during some displays.

Jazz Hits Hawaii, Charleston Popular

San Francisco.—Soft swishing of carved paddles in moonlit waters, crooning of Hawaiian melodies, picturesque outrigger canoes silhouetted against leering palms, etc.

All these things threaten to become things of the romantic "good old days," according to Miss June Sullivan, resident of Honolulu, Oahu, and a visitor to the mainland.

Gasoline motors are replacing paddles as a means of locomotion on outrigger canoes, jazzy saxophones blaring out "hot" songs which are replacing the lilting strains of native music played on guitars and mandolins, and even the hula is giving way to the charleston and varsity drag.

METHODS OF FIGHTING ICE HAZARD IN AIR SOUGHT

Ninety Per Cent of Atlantic Flight Failures Laid to This Cause.

Langley Field, Va.—Methods of fighting the ice hazard held responsible by some aeronautical engineers for 90 per cent of the transatlantic flight failures, are being developed principally along the lines of avoidance rather than ways of overcoming the ice after it has formed on the wings and fuselage of an airplane.

Installation of a distance thermometer, with its bulb on a remote edge of the wing, has been recommended by Thomas Carroll and William R. McAvoy, who have completed a preliminary study of the ice hazard to airplanes for the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

The aviator would then know the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere and might be able to avoid the combination of conditions which force an airplane to earth with a heavy ice coating on its wings and fuselage.

Investigation and flight experimentation carried on by the two scientists disclosed that ice formed most readily on planes when they encountered rain or heavy fog at a temperature of 30 to 31 degrees Fahrenheit. The airplane flying through rain and fog under such conditions cannot remain in air longer than an hour, the investigators found, and some planes, which are already heavily loaded, can remain in the air but from 15 to 20 minutes after they have encountered air with a high water content and temperatures just below freezing.

Means of prevention or removal of the ice formations have been suggested, and some of them tried. The complete results of all trials will form the subject of further study by scientists of the national advisory committee.

The addition of a chemical to the oil or grease may be of merit, the scientists report, but it has the obvious disadvantage of being "messy" and might possibly be removed to a great extent by the scrubbing action of the high velocity rain or sleet.

Federal Tax Report Shows Huge Incomes

Washington.—That the United States has 283 persons with incomes of a million dollars or more a year is revealed in the annual income tax report of the internal revenue bureau. This is an increase of 52 over the previous fiscal year. Ten of the total had incomes of more than $5,000,000 a year.

The total of incomes on which taxes were paid during the year just ended is $22,573,317,907, an increase of $1,018,141,581. A total of 4,122,242 persons made returns, and the sum of $826,245,407 was collected.

The average income for the year was $5,475.98.

The number of corporations filing returns during the year was 452,853, of which 249,847 reported net incomes totaling $8,068,209,905 and income tax of $1,007,981,774.

Under the heading "Sources of incomes," the report gives the following figures: Wages and salaries, $10,046,-986,066; business, $3,528,702,060; dividends, $4,156,167,871, and rents and royalties, $1,397,890,040.

Restores Rural Church Attended in Boyhood

Fond du Lac, Wis.—After six years of silence the little abandoned Lake Maria Methodist Episcopal church, near Markesan, once more echoes to the sounds of a congregation at worship, all because of the affection a man held for the church of his boyhood.

Ellery Pendell's father helped haul lumber for the little meeting house sixty-three years ago, two years after Ellery's birth. Ellery attended services there.

Pendell now is a retired farmer. When he heard that the church was closed because it needed repairs he supplied money and effort to renovate it and reopen it for worship.

Siren Turns on Lights

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A device for turning on flood lights at an airport by means of a siren on an arriving plane has been demonstrated successfully. An "electric ear" picks up the sound waves and transmits them to an apparatus which turns on the lights.

An electric radio the best gift of all

The best gift of all because every member of the family enjoys it. The newest song hits from shows come over the air to entertain the young folks; sweet old-time Christmas carols and the harmony of chimes and bells to delight the family circle gathered round the Christmas radio. Bedtime stories for the wee ones, operatic selections and orchestral symphonies for mother and dad all the year through. The best gift of all is the electric radio because it brings music and entertainment.

An electric radio does away with unsightly batteries. Your light socket supplies the electric energy for evenings of merriment. A press of the switch, a turn of the dial and joy reigns supreme in the house. There are no batteries to run "low" and bring disappointment when you have anticipated joyful hours.

DIAMOND FIELD WORTH BILLIONS

New Diggings in South Africa Called Greatest Discovery of Age.

Cape Town.—Two or three times a week an airplane glides to earth at the military airdrome in Cape Town. As soon as the engines are stilled the pilot takes a black box from the fuselage and hands it over to an armed guard. In that little box are diamonds worth nearly a million dollars.

They are being brought by the military airplanes from the richest and most secret diamond field in the world. Between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth of diamonds are being found on this field each month and carefully hoarded away in secret vaults in Cape Town. If this wealth of stones were suddenly flung on the market in Hatton Gardens and New York, diamonds, real diamonds, would become as cheap as artificial pearls, says W. J. Makin in the Chicago Tribune.

Yet the world outside the big diamond syndicates knows nothing of this greatest diamond discovery of the age. It exists in a lonely sandy waste known as Alexander bay, lying on the southwest coast of Africa just below the mouth of the Orange river. The district is called Namaqualand, an area of salt pans and sand dunes where droughts occur with terrible regularity and the few white farmers live a precarious existence.

Found by Prospector.

A few months ago a Doctor Marensky, prospecting in this sandy wilderness, stumbled upon diamonds lying on the surface of the ground. Where the wind had swept away the sand, diamonds could be seen. But the land was crown land, and Doctor Marensky had to report his discovery.

The South African government investigated the find, and soon realized that Alexander bay was the richest diamond field in the world. They pointed out that the area was crown land, permitted Doctor Marensky and the syndicate financing him to take a hundred claims, and thereupon prohibited any further prospecting in the district. And then, with a few white workers, they proceeded to unearth a wealth and quantity of diamonds such as the world has never known before.

The whole of this discovery had to be kept a close secret. Even today, when a few of the details are known, no journalist or outsider is permitted to go near the fields, no photographs are allowed to be taken, and the area is policed by picked men, who have orders to shoot any intruders found thereabout.

The government set to work on the new fields with a staff of 60 or 70 whites as workers. Not only was it discovered that the fields were richer than those at Kimberley, but the quality and size of the stones were superior to those discovered in any other part of the world. Moreover, it soon became apparent that the state diggings were even richer than those claimed by Doctor Marensky and his syndicate.

Prospectors Blocked.

Owing to the inaccessible nature of the wilderness surrounding Alexander bay, military airplanes were called into use to transport the diamonds to Cape Town.

Naturally, as soon as details of the new finds leaked out, prospectors and diggers from all over South Africa wanted to rush the Namaqualand diggings. The government declined to allow this. A gigantic fence was erected around the state diggings and a permanent police force was posted at Dunviel, which is three miles from the diggings. Here, any motor cars, ox wagons, or trekkers on horseback are examined before they are allowed to proceed. There are two gates to this fence—south and east—and the police constantly patrol it.

Yet to guard such a huge area an army would be needed. Clever gangs are already at work pilfering the fields. Often they use natives, who can worm themselves into this area cleverly camouflaged against the sand. High-powered cars are kept by the gangs at a safe distance, and these convey the stones to the smugglers, who, in turn, travel by the mail ships leaving Cape Town for Europe.

The police have begged for reinforcements to protect this area of incalculable wealth. The area of South Africa is big, however, and the police force limited. Nevertheless, several of these diamond thieves have been caught.

Jilted, Asks Return of Cows and House

Greeley, Colo.—In a suit on file in court here Martin Pianiski is seeking to recover part of the cost of a hopeless love affair.

Pianiski in his suit asks that a house, lots, cows, and other property he deeded Mrs. Emma Giuriac, the object of his affections, be returned to him.

It is alleged in the suit that Pianiski deeded the property to Mrs. Giuriac in the hopes that she would marry him, but now that she will not marry him Pianiski wants his property back.

High School Gets Gift of Bleachers

The 1928 Senior Class of Kingston High School has presented to its Alma Mater two sets of bleachers which will be used in the school gym. They have a seating capacity of a hundred people. The bleachers are something the school needed for some time. On previous occasions those who attended basketball games or other functions in the gym were obliged to stand but now they have the splendid equipment of the bleachers.

This gift is the most remarkable one that any senior class has ever made to the school. It is something that can always be used and at the same time stands in memory of the 1928 class. When the bleachers are not in use they are very easily taken down and laid along the wall for they take up very little space. The school as a whole thanks the class for their useful present.

Prisma Decorates School.

The Prisma Society in accordance with its usual custom decorated the school for the Christmas season. All the rooms and offices throughout the school are decorated with wreaths and holly. The front corridor is especially artistically decorated with wreaths, trees and candles.

The Prisma has also given a holly wreath in memory of each high school student who lost his life in the World War. The trees stand in the front lawn in front of Miss Reber and the Latin Club boys have attended the wreaths to the trees.

Hurricane's Progress

A hurricane is started by the upward convention over an area many miles in diameter of warm, humid air, probably in a rather calm region between oppositely directed currents of air. It comes to rest over land, or wherever else it no longer is fed by an abundant supply of warm, saturated air.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—Prescott B. McCartney of this city has few rivals in his particular hobby. For more than 25 years he has collected street car transfers from every location of the world and his collection now contains more than 10,000 pieces, representing nearly every country where street railways exist.

Mr. McCartney said he knows of only one other transfer collector. This man, who lives in Omaha, boarded a street car and rode for one block, in order to obtain a transfer, McCartney said.

MODENA

Modena, Dec 20—The following dates have been chosen for the various Christmas entertainments to be held in Modena: Friday evening, December 21, teachers of local school, Miss Mary Brandon and Miss Gaffney and their scholars will present Christmas exercises at the schoolhouse; Wednesday evening, December 26, members of the Modena Methodist Sunday school will hold Christmas services in the Community Hall.

The Modena troop of Girl Scouts have planned to hold a Christmas party in their club rooms Friday evening, December 21, but will doubtless change the date as it conflicts with the school celebration.

The object of this social is to raise money for the Home Bureau, while a social time and dancing will be added features of interest. This is planned as a community affair, not restricted to Home Bureau members.

ACCORD

Accord, Dec. 20.—A special service Sunday morning in honor of the Men's Club of Rochester Church was well attended and proved to be of interest and profit to all who attended. About thirty-eight men represented the club in a body and other members of the congregation very nearly filled the auditorium. It is hoped there will be more church services of this nature and spirit.

The children of the Rochester Sunday school are busy preparing a program to be given on Christmas evening in the church. All are invited to come and enjoy this program.

There will be a special Christmas service on the morning of Christmas day at 10 o'clock at the Rochester Church. Those who attended the special Thanksgiving Day services feel that they certainly do not want to miss the special Christmas services. All others are also earnestly invited to join in this hour of worship. The service will be limited to one hour. There will be special Christmas music, a Christmas message by the pastor and a sermonette for the children.

About forty young folks of the Far and Near Society gathered in the church basement last Saturday evening for their Christmas party and program. A delicious supper was enjoyed by candle light around a Christmas tree. Afterwards a Christmas program of music and other features was presented.

No Shortage of Christmas Trees

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—Children in New York state will be in no danger of being deprived of their Christmas trees, largely because of the foresight of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University in fostering proper planting methods. Thousands of trees will be furnished this year without jeopardizing future evergreen growth, according to a report of the forest extension service of the college.

Forty-eight plantations for supplying the Christmas demand were started in this state in 1926 through the offering of trees by the college. This year, foresters say, the tree farms will play a larger part than ever before in supplying the market, appreciably reducing the number of trees taken from timber-growing forests for the Yuletide celebration.

Many trees in this state are harvested in the foothills of the Adirondacks, there being several large shipping points such as Malone, Carthage and Lowville in that region. Trees from three to eight feet in height are being offered in the markets. The principal species are spruce and balsam, the latter being preferred because of the more pungent odor and the more tenacious hold the needles have upon the branches.

The purchase of small trees in pots for home decoration is being encouraged by the forestry service, since the same tree may be planted outside in the spring to ornament the grounds about the house.

Figures compiled by the college indicate that approximately 6,000,000 Christmas trees will be taken from the forests and plantations throughout the United States this year and sold for close to $10,000,000.

The Christmas tree plantation is expected eventually to relieve the drain now put upon the forests by the demand for evergreens during the holidays. The drain, however, is said to be not serious as yet, as many trees are cut from pasture lands where they have naturally reseeded and have had space in which to grow symmetrically with a full complement of branches. Trees in dense forests often are so crowded that they lose their lower branches and are not as attractive for decorative purposes as those growing in open fields. Consequently demand for the latter is not heavy.

Experience with plantations started by the college has resulted in the following observations contained in a recent bulletin.

"There are two methods of making a Christmas tree forest. This requires about 2,720 trees to the acre, planted four feet apart. When the trees are eight to 12 years old, about 1,200 are removed for the Christmas market. It is estimated that these trees may be sold for 25 to 30 cents each as they stand on the plantation. With expenses for planting, interest and maintenance this method ought to net approximately $300 an acre.

"The other method involves planting the same number of trees but using all the trees for the Christmas trade. This method ought to yield in the course of eight to 12 years about $750 an acre."

KINGSTON TO HAVE COMMUNITY CONCERTS.

Following a meeting of the executive committee of the Community Concert Association of this city and surrounding county, held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday afternoon, announcement is made that we are to have Community Concerts, a remarkably fine Community Christmas gift. It was reported that 500 memberships had been received, and with several reports still out, Chairman Clarence Rowland and those present felt sure that the three concerts, including a top-notch soloist, was an assured fact. Already the Flonzaley Quartet for one concert and the English Singers of London for a second concert are settled upon. It was hoped to close up the entire enrollment and make all final arrangements before Christmas, but the committee has found that to be impossible as everyone is so Christmasy busy just now. Directly after Christmas a final meeting of the committee will be called when all final reports will be expected so that the entire matter may be definitely settled.

Both the Flonzaley Quartet and the English Singers have created decided musical enthusiasm where they have given concerts. People have been turned away from the Flonzaley Quartet concerts in places where, as in Kingston, no separate tickets were sold, and there were those who had not secured their memberships in time.

MANY EXPECTED TO ATTEND LEGION CHRISTMAS PARTY

The welfare committee of Kingston Post, American Legion, has prepared to take care of a large gathering this evening, when the annual Christmas tree party will be held at the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street. The time of starting is set for 7:30 and it is hoped that everyone will be on time.

The party for every little boy and girl, is open to the public and a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. Percy S. Jones, chairman of the welfare committee, has planned a pleasing program, which was printed in Wednesday night's Freeman. The program given will be preceded by a recitation entitled, "Welcome" by Betty Ann Elmendorf, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Elmendorf. Santa Claus will be there with presents for all kiddies.

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT TRINITY CHURCH

On Sunday evening, December 23, the Sunday school of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church will present its annual Christmas pageant. This year it will be even more colorful than any presented before. The pageant has as its theme the escape of the Infant Jesus from the murderous designs of Herod and the subsequent adoration of the people of all generations. Much use is made of the Christmas carols and the older hymns of the church. About 125 members of the Sunday school are in the cast. Everyone is invited to witness this annual event.

Soldiers' Dance Christmas Night.

The dance to be held under the auspices of the Military Order of Cooties and Sunshine Order of Veterans of Foreign Wars in conjunction with the First Battalion, 156th Field Artillery, will take place on Christmas night at the armory. It was announced recently that the dance was scheduled for Christmas eve or December 24, which was erroneous.

Rural Christmas Services.

The Rev. J. B. Steketee will preach Christmas sermons on Sunday at the following places at the time stated: Ulster Park Reformed Church, 10:30 a. m. St. Remy Reformed Church, 2:30 p. m. Union Center Church, 7:30 p. m. The Ulster Park Sunday School will present a Christmas entertainment on Monday evening, December 24, at 7:30 o'clock.

Ancient Gods

Among the gods of the early British who were driven into Ireland was the sun god Nudd, or Ludd, as he was called. His name appears in Ludgate, and it is thought that his temple stood on what is now Ludgate hill in London. Apollo, the sun god of the Greeks and Romans, was worshiped throughout the sunny lands of the south.

Bat Tribe Members of Animal Kingdom

Bats are animals, not birds. They suckle their young at the breast and are classed by zoologists as flying mammals. There are more than 250 species and subspecies of bats in North America alone. Some of the tropical species are blood-sucking vampires, and others are fruit eaters, although nearly all the bats of the United States and farther north are insectivorous. Usually the female gives birth to one young, but cases of twins are not uncommon. One authority says on this subject: "They never make any nests or even attempt to fix over the crannies where they hide and where the little bats are born. These helpless little things are not left at home at the mercy of foraging rats and mice. When the old bat flies off into the twilight the youngsters often go with her, clinging about her neck. At times she deposits them on the branch of a tree, where they hang, sheltered by the leaves."

Novel Coined Phrase

The Jewish people are not often referred to as children of the ghetto, although the expression is the title of a very well-known novel by Israel Zangwill. Zangwill, a successful English novelist, wrote "Children of the Ghetto," a study of modern Jewish life, in 1892. He died in 1926.

Ghetto means the Jewish quarter in a European city. Ghettos have not existed, except in Russia and Poland, for about fifty years. Jewish people now living may have had grandfathers who were children of the ghetto but are not in any sense children of the ghetto themselves.

Don't Let Flu Get a Foothold: Check at Start

Fight Germs With Vapors and Avoid Dosing

Most cases of Flu start with just a simple cold. If neglected the cold lowers the physical resistance and makes the body easy prey for influenza, grip and pneumonia.

The only safe plan is to start Vicks protective treatment at once: Put a little Vicks VapoRub up each nostril and snuff well back. If convenient, also place some Vicks in a bowl of hot water, and inhale the steaming vapors. At bedtime, rub Vicks on your throat and chest.

Vicks then brings relief in 2 ways: (1) Its ingredients, vaporized by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the infected air passages; (2) it acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and pain.

French City Supplies Perfumes of Quality

The little town of Grasse of 14,000 inhabitants, picturesquely situated on the French Riviera, is the greatest center in the world for the making of essence and perfumes.

During the past year the quantity of flowers used for the making of perfumes reached the total of 13,000,000 pounds. Included were orange blossoms, violets, jasmine, roses, tuberoses, carnations, cassia, mignonette and wallflowers. Thirty thousand pounds of roses are required for a single quart of essence of rose.

Called the "City of Scents," Grasse began its perfume making away back in the Sixteenth century, when Queen Catherine de Medicis sent an expert to Grasse with the purpose of "founding a laboratory." The city's busiest period is from May to July. Then visitors are shown great shallow vats of liquid lard or some other equally basic preparation, upon which large quantities of flowers are laid, so that the greasy substance underneath may absorb any essence coming from these floral heaps.

When this process takes place the mass of fat is boiled down and other liquids are mixed with it, liquids having special properties for strengthening and retaining the particular perfume desired. Then comes the time to bottle, pack and transport the fragrant scents. No less than 400 factories are engaged in scent making in Grasse, which gives employment to 80 per cent of the population.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

By popular request the pre-Christmas program of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra on December 22, will be reminiscent of the Yuletide season in bonny Scotland. In fact, Sir Harry Lauder himself has sent a message to the Lucky Strike audience which will be read during the hour. When the noted kilted comedian's most popular songs were played by the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra several weeks ago, floods of letters poured in on the American Tobacco Company requesting them to "put on the bagpipes again". Consequently, as millions of Christmas trees are being trimmed throughout the length and breadth of the United States, the spirited skirling of bagpipes will invite the merrymakers to pause and dance.

The story of an unexpected Christmas celebration which took place on the high seas will be told in an original radio play entitled "A Sea-Going Santa," to be broadcast as the Soconyland Sketch over the N. B. C. system at 7:30 Christmas night. Inasmuch as the regular Soconyland program falls on Christmas, the authors of these broadcasts have endeavored to present something distinctly unusual—a Christmas story, but one completely devoid of reindeer, sleigh bells, Christmas trees and stockings. The resulting drama takes place on a lumber schooner three days out from Bangor, Maine. A grumbling crew storms at a hard-boiled captain, who, for Christmas dinner, provides them with salt pork instead of turkey. But, despite their isolation from the convention Yuletide festivities, Santa reaches the ship and by a strange twist a dismal situation is turned into a gay Christmas.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Miss Genevieve Mach, poet and aviatrix, has been picketing a Brooklyn automobile agency with a car labelled "My $2,999 Lemon". The automobile also has been adorned with eight lemons and a verse about the make the agency sold her. The agency haled her to court. She made a claim about repairs and the case was continued.

Moscow—Women are to be trained for work as army storekeepers in time of war. The sum of 10,000 rubles is to be used for a school where they will learn how to take care of artillery, ammunition and provisions.

Chicago—James Murphy, circus clown, avers that married life has taken all the fun out of him and he can no longer get a clowning job. Therefore he seeks a divorce.

Pierre, S. D.—Poker Alice, contemporary of Deadwood Dick, Calamity Jane and Wild Bill Hickock in pioneer days, is to spend her last days outside prison instead of inside. Sentenced to serve six months for a matter involving morals, Mrs. Alice Tubbs, 75, has been pardoned by the governor.

Plourivo, France—Arthur Richard, municipal councillor, seems to have some sort of a record as a giver away. His five children were married in a single ceremony.

Sydney, N. S.—Delbert Hollingsworth is the father of 30 children, 15 by his first marriage and 15 by his second.

New York—Our loans abroad are mounting about $2,000,000,000 annually. The total was given as $26,000,000,000 by Max Winkler, banker, as a conference on international finance. Investments abroad during the last decade equal the aggregate excess of exports over imports.

Washington—Notwithstanding the current flurry of flu we seem to be healthier than ever on the whole. Last year the national death rate was 11.4 persons per 1,000 population, the lowest ever. Heart disease and cancer were the chief causes of death.

New York—So many people have been dabbling in the market that the Stock Exchange has bought two buildings to provide for expansion.

Berlin—The National party desires any foreigner jailed and deported who says publicly that Germany deliberately caused the war. Its bill is regarded as having no chance of success.

Washington—Two assistants of Santa Claus were thought to be drunk by policemen at Falls Church, Va., and were kept in a cell an hour and a half before it was discovered they had been overcome by fumes from their engine. They had a load of Christmas trees. At Georgetown Hospitals students offered blood to save them.

New York—Mrs. Hannah R. Melman, wife of a dress manufacturer, said when seeking a separation that her matrimonial troubles did not start until she weighed 250. She was awarded allimony of $175 a week and a house for herself and five children.

Harrison, N. J.—Some useless escaping steam at a generating plant has been converted into a Christmas tree. Floodlights of red, blue, green and amber are turned on it so that it makes a beacon 200 feet high visible ten miles.

LAKE KATRINE.

Lake Katrine, Dec. 21.—The annual entertainment held by the teachers of the district school will be given on Friday evening, December 21, at the school-house at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday, December 23, the regular church services will be held in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock instead of evening. The collection at this time will be divided between Hope College and Central College, denominational colleges of the Reformed Church, for which an appeal for funds has been made. The Rev. A. V. S. Wallace will conduct the service.

Power of Field Glass

The magnification of a field glass is never given in terms of the distance through which one can see through the glass, which depends upon conditions of the atmosphere, quality of the field glass, and size of the object in the field. The power of a field glass ranges usually from six to sixteen times.

HELIUM PLANT TO RUN FULL BLAST

Government Project in Texas Near Completion.

Amarillo, Texas—When the new helium plant of the United States government, under construction near here is completed and in operation next January, it will be run on a 24-hour seven-days-a-week basis, it is announced. Railroad tank cars of a special design are now being built for transporting the refined helium to the dirigible airports of the army and navy. Each of these cars will consist of three enormous cylinders, one on top of two, pyramid-fashion, secured together and firmly fixed on a railroad car chassis. The drums, or cylinders, will each be approximately 40 feet in length, with an inside diameter of 46 inches and a shell of two-inch thickness.

They will be gas-tight, with suitable safety valves, and carry their loads under a pressure of 2,000 pounds a square inch. Under this pressure a car will carry 200,000 cubic feet of helium. Each cylinder is tested to 3,300 pounds' pressure a square inch. At this time there are three cars of this type available. The army has two and the navy one.

An interesting fact in connection with these cars, from an engineering point of view, is that a cylinder of this magnitude can carry a load under such heavy pressure.

The first unit of the new helium plant is made up of nine buildings, together with storage tanks and equipment. The principal structures are the separation building where the helium is recovered and the administration building and shops. As it stands the plant represents roughly one unit of what will ultimately evolve into a project capable of handling 5,000,000 cubic feet of raw gas, and more, every day. Its present capacity will range between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 cubic feet daily. This, however, is not actual helium recovered but the amount of raw gas passed through the compressors in a day.

Truth Handicapped

When the fire burns clear and good friends gather round—

ON CHRISTMAS Day, when the family dinner is over and the presents given, then comes that delightful social time, Christmas afternoon. Friends drop in to wish you well. There is an exchange of greetings. Sun shines outside. Before the fire there is merry talk.

And to express the warmth of your feeling you serve your guests "Canada Dry." Here is a Christmas beverage . . . bubbling over with mellowness, fine flavor and quality. From its amber depths you drink and understand the genuineness of this fine ginger ale. For it is made from finest quality Jamaica ginger and other absolutely pure ingredients. It has no bite. That is because it contains no capsicum (red pepper). It expresses the true spirit of the occasion because it is a true ginger ale.

Serve "Canada Dry" on Christmas Day. Drink it with dinner. For, to your table, to your home, it will bring that same air of distinction which it brings to thousands of homes throughout America.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

THE VELVET WRAP INDEPENDENT OF FUR—LENGTH ADORNING PROBLEM.

New York.—While many of the more pretentious evening wraps are heavily furred, it is undoubtedly quite as smart to omit fur on one's evening wrap, irrespective of its length.

One of the most upsetting questions to settle is how long shall the wrap be. The practical are inclined to stand pat for the long ones which completely conceal the dress beneath. They are forced to admit, however, that this is difficult to achieve, dresses being of such contradictory length. Short jackets for evening have all the attraction of being new and there is something to be said for them from the standpoint of economy. Velvet wraps have inclined toward scarf necklines and in nearly every instance there is a long-ended bow, a fish tail jabot.

Cape of Leaf Green Transparent Velvet. The Series of Scarf Ends Fall From a Knot at the Back of the Collar—All Fashioned of the Same Fabric.

(Copyright, 1928, by Fairchild)

Matching the wrap to the slippers is another arresting idea, encountered most frequently in bright green, red, or sapphire.

Slippers and fan sets are another version of the link up idea, modern fans being made entirely of velvet, sans decoration or of plain tulle, not stretched to the frame is in the usual fan but attached to suggest a series of loops. Reviving the fan seems to be a more or less hopeless task. The shops show charming ones in abundance but they are few and far between in practice, the exception to this being brightly hued ostrich feather fans which have become as much a part of an opera audience as ermines and sables.

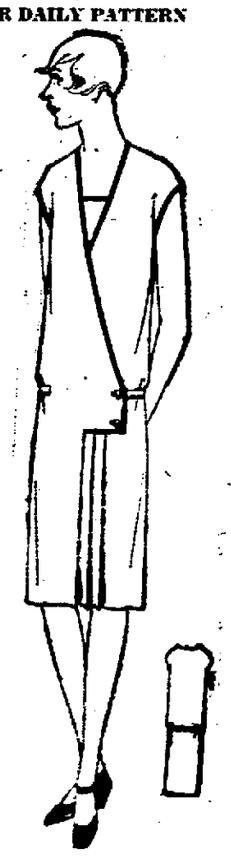
OUR DAILY PATTERN



A Charming Morning Frock.

6309. White linen with pipings in black or a color, would be nice for this model. Striped gingham with facings of white, or cotton broadcloth with a printed design on blue, green or lavender ground are also suggested. The right front closes over the left front in surplice effect, and forms a shaped extension above a group of plaits. The shoulder lines are lengthened to form short cap sleeves. A narrow belt holds the fulness of the dress. A small ruston completes a very charming effect.

The Pattern for this frock is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. To make this model for a Medium size will require 3⅛ yards of 36 inch material. To finish with bias binding or piping as illustrated requires 4 yards. The width of the frock at the lower edge with plaits extended is 1¾ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1928 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 20 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

A key is a low island, especially one of coral, along the coast. The small islands along the coast of Florida are called Florida keys because of their location and because they are low and of coral formation.

Kingston Jews Pledge $10,350

Syracuse Dec. 21.—Kingston's payments to the United Jewish Campaign have been brought up to $6,326 as a result of additional contributions delivered by Henry Klein on behalf of the Jewish community of Kingston. Bernard B. Given, state chairman of the United Jewish Campaign announced from state headquarters here today.

The total pledge by Kingston Jewish community amounts to $10,350 and Mr. Klein, one of the prominent Jewish leaders, assured state and national officers and delegates at the Emergeency Relief Conference held at Albany last week that every dollar pledged by the Jewish people of Kingston would be paid.

Kingston had a large delegation at the state meeting. Included in the delegation from Kingston were: Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Gross, Morris Kaplan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirchner, Ben Silverman and Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klein. The entire Kingston delegation joined unanimously in resolutions calling for speeding up collections on pledges in order to enable the relief agencies to function properly in the task of reconstructing Jewish life in the countries where the Jewish people have suffered from a series of misfortunes. The delegates also approved a resolution calling for the taking of drastic steps against persons who are delinquent in paying their pledges.

David A. Brown, National Chairman of the United Jewish Campaign, Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, Bernard B. Given and other outstanding Jewish leaders declared that the pledges in the cause of the United Jewish campaign are a legal as well as a moral obligation. David M. Bressler, chairman of the $7,000,000 drive in New York told of several incidents in which delinquents were made to realize by court action that they must pay their pledges.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Dec. 20.—After several days of lowering weather this section was visited by a high wind and rain storm on Monday night, however the streams are still low and all trust winter will not set in while they remain in this condition.

The Baptist Sunday school will hold a Christmas entertainment at the church on Saturday evening, December 22 at 8 o'clock. A speaking and musical program is being arranged for the occasion. A cordial invitation is extended to all the community. It is requested that each family bring some refreshments which will be served free of charge, by the Ladies' Aid.

The state road contractor, who is to build the concrete road at Shokan, has arrived with his men and equipment, which means disappointment to local men who had anticipated employment.

At the close of the church services held at the Baptist Church on Sunday afternoon, the right hand of fellowship was extended to Mrs. J. H. McRoberts, completing her membership in the church, after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed.

Sympathy is extended Miss Ernestene Hesley, who is suffering with a severe case of quinsy sore throat, this being a repetition of a similar severe attack of last winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Snyder and family of the Traver Hollow Inn also Martin J. Every were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Watson Bishop of West Shokan Heights.

Marvin Vandemark of Main street is making some needed repairs to his stables, his spirited team of horses, due to inactivity, having raised havoc with the floors.

William Jones is recovering from the infection in his hand which has for weeks been causing him much annoyance and pain.

Ralph Bell of Bushkill, one of the local trappers, reports having taking a mink and several muskrats.

Mrs. E. C. Davis, who has been confined to the house for some time with rheumatism in her feet is somewhat improved.

Professor and Mrs. Condon were Phoenicia visitors on Sunday.

The following officers were nominated at Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge on Saturday evening: Noble grand, Raymond Bell; vice grand, William Jordan; recording secretary, Harlowe, McLean, renominated; financial secretary, John Jordan, renominated; treasurer, Virgil C. Gordon. Shokan Lodge is well known and in a prosperous condition and merits well the consideration of anyone desiring membership. Shokan Lodge was instituted in 1881 and has functioned continuously for nearly fifty years. Plans are already being made for its golden anniversary in 1931.

It really seems hard to realize that the Christmas season is here due in part to the continued mild weather which all have experienced throughout November and December to date. Judging from prevailing conditions there will be no Christmas sleighing this year, although one can never tell as Mother Nature is very changable.

Chester Lyons, the popular Chevrolet dealer of Shokan, made a business trip to the great metropolis on Monday. He states that he expects to have a new 1929 Chevrolet on display about December 27.

William Colange has installed a Sparton radio which is being admired for its volume and quality of tone.

A number of local young folks are writing appealing letters to Santa Claus of which all trust these sincere appeals may not be in vain.

The condition of Mrs. Lucia Miller of Brodhead still remains unchanged. She requires great care. The health of her son, Raymond, is also not of the best, and the sincere wishes of the yuletide season is extended in their behalf.

The ice pond which has been constructed on the Beechford Farms, near the Cold Brook bridge, is now ready for the impounding of the waters which will no doubt prove a mecca for the sport of skating.

The shipping of Christmas evergreens and wreaths by the Barclay Brothers of Ashokan has grown to be one of the town's leading industries.

A number of local celebrities expect to spend the Christmas season in communities other than home.

Elwyn Davis has in his possession a hand-forged bear and a wolf trap which were made by his great-great grandfather Crispell, the age of which must be well over one hundred years. The bear trap was loaned to the late Henry Cozens of Shokan in 1907 who caught a large bear in it at that time.

All are happy to report that Mrs. Mathias Burgher is improving rapidly.

Abe Longyear, the Watkins man, passed through this place on Tuesday.

Leroy Davis of Teagore was here buying calves recently.

William Colange, local progressive storekeeper, was a caller at West Shokan Heights on Tuesday.

The Brodhead school will hold its Christmas tree entertainment on Friday evening of this week. A fine program has been arranged under the efficient leadership of the teacher, Mrs. E. C. Burgher.

Quite a number from this locality attended the lecture given by John Lyon, the ex-monk, at the Port Ewen Pythian Hall on Tuesday evening.

E. C. Burgher hopes to have his bungalow, "The Manse", ready for occupancy in the near future. The work, plumbing, heating and inside finishing is to be rushed by M. J. Every & Company of Rutherville.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Roberts of Tuckaway Farm are planning to hold a family reunion on Christmas. Their son, Earl, and family expect to make the trip from Detroit, Mich., by motor.

Raymond and Shirley Bell of Bushkill are assisting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bell.

Much credit is due the residents and merchants of Kingston for the very attractive manner in which the city is decorated and lighted for the Yuletide season.

Donald Bishop, who is attending school at Mt. Hermon, Mass., expects to arrive home on Friday evening for a ten-day vacation over the holidays.

Bob Bishop caught an unusually large gray rabbit with a snare one night this week.

All are informed that practically the required number of signers to insure the putting through of the electric light line have been secured.

Christmas Plans At Holy Cross

Music a Feature of the Services—Children's Festival—Choir to Sing Handel's "Messiah" — Elaborate Music for Midnight Mass.

The Feast of the Nativity will be ushered in at Holy Cross Church with a solemn high Mass at midnight, preceded by a recital of carols. Elaborate preparations have been made for the decoration of the church and for the service. The full choir will be augmented and will sing one of the most famous settings for the Mass ever composed. Palestina's Missa Brevis, a rarely heard musical work because of its great technical difficulty. No organ or instruments are used for accompaniment, the voices having to be so perfected that unaided they must carry the poignantly beautiful counterpoint of Palestrina. It is considered to be above all other musical works the most suited to the mystical service and hour of the Christmas midnight Mass. The celebrant will be the Rev. Fr. John S. Baldwin, O. H. C., curate of Holy Cross; the deacon will be the rector, the Rev. Fr. Mabry; the subdeacon will be the Rev. Raymond S. Hornby, curate of Holy Cross. A low Mass for holy communion will follow at 7:30 a. m., and the children's Mass will be sung at 10:30 a. m., with a sermon by the rector.

On the evening of December 28 the Feast of the Holy Innocents, the children's festival, will be held in the parish house. A Christmas tree, gifts and games will be concluded with a visit to the manger in the church and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. On the Sunday afternoon following Christmas the augmented choir will sing the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" under the direction of the organist and choirmaster, Walter J. Kidd.

The program for the midnight Mass is as follows:

ROSENDALE GRANGE WAS PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED

Twenty-eight members of Rosendale Grange, No. 1501, P. of H., motored over to New Paltz on Saturday, December 15, where they were guests of Huguenot Grange. County Deputy Weaver had arranged for the installation of officers of New Paltz and Rosendale by State Overseer Raymond Cooper of Oswego, N. Y. The hall with its festive decorations of Christmas greens, flowers and varicolored lights, lent to the affair a cheerful and happy air.

The beautiful ritual was exemplified by Overseer Cooper, assisted by members of Clintondale Grange, whose admirable work was highly commented upon, as well executed. Several fine addresses were made by Overseer Cooper, formerly state lecturer, drawing impressions from the ritualism, so well illustrated in the direction of fraternal achievement.

Speeches were made by C. I. LeFever, Jr., master, and chaplain Henry Mollenhauer of Rosendale, also expressing their gratitude to Huguenot Grange for their cordial reception. After the meeting delicious ice cream, cake and coffee was served, with an hour of sociability. The next meeting will be held on January 1, 1929, when each member will be asked to bring a simple ten cent gift to exchange with another member. All members are expected to be present, for new work is to be acted upon.

Three Industrial League Games at The "Y.M." Court

In the industrial games played at the Y. M. C. A. court Thursday night, Hercules submerged Brighams, 62 to 18; Silk Mills defeated Central Hudson, 47 to 24 and Schillings beat out the Artistics in the last quarter, 27 to 20. The last two games of the night were taken in the second half.

Hercules is certainly going strong this season for they took Brighams into camp to the tune of 62 to 18. The powder makers lost no time after the game got under way. They gathered in the baskets fast and often and at the end of the quarter had a big lead on their opponents. In the second session Brighams scored four points to add to the three collected the opening period. At half time the Hercules representatives led by a big margin, 28 to 7. In the second half the Hercules team more than doubled their score while Brighams sunk a shot from scrimmage now and then.

The final score of the Silk Mills-Central Hudson game looks as if the game was not interesting, but it was. Throughout the first half both teams were nip and tuck. The Central Hudson men were playing good basketball and the Silk Mills were doing likewise. They continued to play on even terms throughout the first half. At the end of the opening session the tally was Central Hudson 17, Silk Mills, 16. The last half saw the Silk Mills jump in front to take the game by a safe margin. In the third quarter the Central Hudson team managed to keep in the race but the last period they lost out and lost out fast. The Silk Mills were playing the same brand of basketball that they were when they started but on the other hand the Hudson team was falling to pieces. Their defensive work had no effect on their opponents and although their offensive work was good they failed to make their shots good which resulted in a 47 to 24 score in the Silk Mill's favor.

The artistics falling to pieces in the second half as the usually do when they are leading at half time, lost to the Schillings. In the first half the Artistics played straight basketball and this resulted in their eight point lead at half time, 15 to 7. In the second half individuality was the thing that lost the game for the Artistics. No pass work but plenty of shooting and few shots found the hoop in the right spot. On the other hand the Schillings played on in their first skillful method of working the ball under the basket, and when they got it by the rim they made them count. Williams was the big point getter for the winners with 11 points most of which were made from the side of the court with one hand. The Schillings were well deserving of the victory. The final tally was 27 to 20 in favor of the Schilling team.

TIRESOME GOLF AT ST. ANDREWS

Crowd Isn't Bad, but Caddies Can Be a Nuisance.

"To be told that it will take you three hours to get round St. Andrews in the season, that if you take only an hour and a quarter to the turn you will inevitably take an hour and three-quarters home—this is, to be sure, a little daunting, but the real thing is not nearly so bad as the imaginary picture, writes Bernard Darwin, in the London Spectator.

"In the first place, you have no grievance against anyone in particular. No one tiresome person is keeping you back; you are simply one in a great endless stream that goes round the links all day long at that regular and leisurely pace, and whether you have Braid, Vardon and Taylor in front of you, or a fat woman with two small children, makes no difference whatever.

"In the second place, the very slowness of the round saves you from yourself. You cannot play three rounds if you want to, and think how good that is for you.

"As to the Scottish caddie, I remain an impenitent Southerner. He may sometimes be a great man, but he can often be a great nuisance. He is apt to be too stern, possessive and dominating, too thoroughly convinced of the fact—which I am quite prepared to admit—that he knows better.

"That, however, is a matter of individual taste, and some persons like being dragooned. It is not merely a matter of taste to object to driving bargains with your caddie, to undertake to pay him extortionate sums, and then to find that he has either spent them in advance and so is not well enough to attend, or else that he has merely 'gone with a handsomer man than you.'

"Doubtless there are great difficulties in the way of the authorities, but I still think that the caddies need not be quite such an uncontrolled rabble as they often are.

Bishop of Athletics Is Best Fielder at Second

According to a number of players on the Athletics, Bishop is the best second baseman in the American league in 1928. Much of the success of the infield they attribute to Bishop's speed in chasing grounders and his great skill for going out to the short fields for fly balls that the outfielders cannot reach. In this department of the game, at least, he has no peer.

Bishop is the kind of a fielder that brings joy to a pitcher's heart. He cuts off base hits for them, pulls them out of trying situations with flashy stops and plays and saves many a run from being charged against their earned-run average.

Bishop attributes the improvement in his batting to the fact that he is swinging more and has changed the model of his bat. In commenting on his hitting, Max said: "I've stopped looking at as many pitches as I used to.

"I've also changed my bat. I'm using a Travis Jackson model now, that I find suits me better than the bat I used to use of my own model. Otherwise, I'm batting just the same as I always did. I haven't changed my stance or tried anything new."

There was a large attendance at Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, held Wednesday evening in their council room. Two members of Kingston Council, No. 124, of Kingston were present. Mrs. Estella Rider, deputy of Esopus, was present at the meeting. The Christmas party was a complete success in every detail. There was a beautiful Christmas tree trimmed with electric ornaments and it presented a very beautiful appearance. The gifts surrounded the tree. Each member received a gift and a box of candies. Refreshments consisted of fruited Jello with whipped cream, cake and coffee. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Conductor, Thelma Durr; associate councilor, Edith Van Vliet; vice councilor, Bessie Wincheli; associate vice councilor, Elsie Hutchings; secretary, Mary F. Bishop; associate secretary, Clara Schryver; financial secretary, Lucie Bishop; treasurer, M. J. Major; guide, Nellie Gardner; outside guard, Frances Post; inside guard, Arlene Reynolds; trustee, re-elected, Ella Fairbrother; representatives to state council at Utica in May, Mildred Short, Frances Post and Elsie Hutchings; alternates, Anna Secor, Lillie Cutler and Lucie Bishop.

There will be an old fashioned dance in Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, Tuesday evening, January 1, 1929. Music by Pardee and Allen's orchestra.

The Christmas spirit is very much in evidence in two business places in Port Ewen, B. Comglio, the fruit and vegetable dealer, and the bus waiting room of Fred Spinneweber on Broadway. Lighted red, white and blue electric light bulbs make an attractive appearance.

Through an oversight the name of Viola Hotaling was omitted in the program of the entertainment to be given in the Reformed Church tonight. Viola takes the part of "Love" the Queen of Fairies.

Farmer's "Day" Shorter.

Reno, Nev. (AP).—Statistics dissipate the popular theory that a farmer works from "sun to sun." Figures from 29 Nevada farms show that the average work day is 9.1 hours. In 1926 it was 9.2 hours. One farmer, however, said he worked 12.8 hours a day.

DAIRY TALK

RIGHT FEED FOR A DAIRY HEIFER

Dairymen should become more farsighted in raising young stock, for the quality of the future herd depends largely on breeding and inherited productive capacity. If the heifer is stunted by poor feeding and neglect she will not become the kind of animal we want when she calves. She will be lacking in capacity, and as the consumption of roughage is necessary for economical milk production, it will be found that in the end it does not pay to neglect the young stock. One cause for the marked difference in the size of cows of the same breeding as found in different herds is this factor of ration when young, says J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division, at Clemson college, South Carolina.

During the summer, on good pasture, little if any, grain is needed if the heifer is at least ten months old; but when pastures are poor or dried up, a little grain is necessary. In winter, however, to get the most rapid growth it is necessary to supply a considerable proportion of the nutrients in the form of concentrates. Where even the best roughage is fed alone, the growth will not be as much as where grain is fed also.

The following are suggestions for rations for heifers in winter:

1. When silage and legume hay are available: corn silage, alfalfa, cowpea or soybean hay at will. For heifers less than ten months old, two pounds of grain daily in addition. The grain must be equal parts of corn and oats. For heifers within three months of calving, in order to insure good flesh at that time, three to five pounds of grain should be fed depending on condition.

2. When corn silage is available but not legume hay: Silage at will and hay or fodder. Two or three pounds of concentrates should be fed daily, one pound of which should be of high protein content such as cottonseed meal. Equal parts of corn, oats, and bran and one-third cottonseed meal.

3. When legume hay is on hand but no silage: Feed all the hay they will clean up and also two pounds of corn and oats.

4. When no silage or legume hay is available: It will pay to buy legume hay; or if grass hay is fed alone, feed all they will clean up. A grain ration for mixed hay will have to be somewhat higher in protein, such as three pounds of a mixture of two parts of corn and one part of cottonseed meal.

Great Care Required in Selecting Record Cows

If the farmer wants a record cow he must buy a cow with a record, and a good one, too, says the New York State College of Agriculture. Time is needed to make good selections, and it is well to seek aid from competent and trustworthy persons.

If a dairyman is buying his cow through a cattle dealer he should be able to trust him, and when he does not know a trustworthy dealer, he should seek assistance from a county breed association or the cattle sales company of the county in which the animal is to be bought. The names and full information about these organizations may be obtained from the county agricultural agents. In case there are no such organizations, county agents can supply prospective buyers with the names of reliable breeders, dairymen, or dealers in the county.

The New York state college says that too much caution cannot be used in buying cows for, although extra time may be needed during the purchasing, much time and money can be saved later on. Dairymen who have lost herds because of random buying are more careful in the future.

Ropy Milk or Cream Is Caused by Minute Germs

Ropy milk or cream is caused by germs that get into the milk after it comes from the cow. These germs usually live in water from which they get into the milk. If your cow has access to water in which she stands or stands in a muddy place these germs get onto the switch of her tail or on the flanks and when dry fall into the milk pail while the milking is being done. In other cases these germs are found in the water tank and get onto the utensils from which they infect the milk.

Clean and thoroughly disinfect all dairy utensils with boiling water. Clean and disinfect the stock tank. Before milking wipe the switch and flanks with a damp cloth to prevent any dirt or dust from falling into the milk. A thorough cleaning and disinfecting will usually end the trouble.

Iodized Milk

At the Ohio station it was found that where no iodine was fed to dairy cows, no trace of the chemical could be detected in the milk. But all tests made of milk from cows receiving two grains of calcium iodine or potassium iodine per day, or two ounces of seaweed rich in iodine, showed an appreciable amount of iodine in the milk. It has not yet been determined whether there may be advantages to humans in consuming iodined milk or not.

Farm Boys And Girls Become The Pride Of American Rural Life

Emphasis on youthful accomplishment has reversed the position of the American farm boy and girl, says C. W. Warburton (inset), federal director of agricultural extension. Below are Edgar Grimes, Harrisburg, Ore., and Frances Reed, Veedersburg, Ind., winners of the Moses trophy, awarded at the Seventh National Boys' and Girls' 4-H club congress. John Jackson, Baton Rouge, La., and Sybil Herring, Cuba, Ill., winners of the Lipton trophy, are shown above.

By Frank I. Weller.
(Associated Press Farm Editor.)

Washington, (AP).—Up from the shadows to an exalted place in the sun has come the American farm boy and girl, to sit at the right hand of his parents in councils on agricultural improvement.

"In no other phase of our national life," says C. W. Warburton, federal director of agricultural extension, "has the youth of the country experienced a more picturesque and fundamental evolution."

Under the old order, the boy on the farm plowed and pitched hay for his father until he reached the age of maturity. Then he got a horse and buggy. If he had been unusually industrious, his parents might throw in the "back forty," or at least let him have what he raised on it. The girl's chief function was to train for her own household by diligently helping her mother. Neither was of more than elementary economic importance, nor had they the incentive to become more, until they suddenly found themselves facing the problems of citizenship.

Warburton points to the farm club movement and its attainments as evidence of a completely reversed position for rural boys and girls.

At the Seventh National Boys' and Girls' 4-H club congress in Chicago, representing a membership of 600,000, two boys and two girls received signal honors, two for excellence of club leadership and two for outstanding club records.

The leadership trophies, offered by H. A. Moses, of Mittineague, Mass., were won by Edgar Grimes, 18, Harrisburg, Ore., and Frances Reed, Veedersburg, Ind. John Jackson, 16, Baton Rouge, La., and Sybil Herring, 16, Cuba, Ill., won the trophies for the best personal club records, offered by Sir Thomas Lipton, famous English yachtsman and importer.

"Each of these young people," Warburton says, "is a splendid example of modern farm youth and the new order in which boys and girls are making money for themselves, advancing agricultural efficiency, laying the foundation for more prosperous and interesting lives, and proving by personal accomplishment that the farm boy and girl is capable of sitting in council with his parents on matters affecting their own future and that of the occupation they follow."

Surpassing men of long experience, Grimes was the champion dairy showman of the Pacific northwest last year. Since 1921 he has completed 31 club projects with pigs, sheep, poultry and dairy calves, made a total of 167 exhibits at county, state and district fairs, and won $2,253 in prizes. Both he and Miss Reed are famed for their ability to organize and coach other farm boys and girls in club work. Young Jackson and Miss Herring were honored for their excellent showing in individual work, the first with swine, corn, potatoes and dairying and the latter with home furnishing and clothing projects.

Christmas Party At St. Peter's

The annual Christmas party of St. Peter's young ladies' bowling club was held Thursday evening in the school. All the members spent a merry time because the officers successfully provided for this yuletide gathering. Santa Claus visited the gathering and brought along presents for all including the clergy, who were invited. In order to add to the spirit of the occasion the luncheon room was daintily decorated with the usual ornaments including a tree with lights that added much effect to the setting. There was plenty to eat when it came to lunch. Holiday cakes, candies and nuts were included in the refreshments. Christmas carols were also on the program. This was only one of the many parties held during the year and it increased the good spirit in the club, according to the Misses Ida Bruck, Louise Mellert and Mathilda Bruck, the newly elected officers. Other members of St. Peter's Sodality are welcome to join and enjoy the weekly bowling and other events.

Farm or Train, Texan Runs Either one Well

Palestine, Texas.—In addition to a man-sized job as conductor on a crack passenger train on the Missouri Pacific lines, E. B. Howard personally supervises his 335-acre farm near Palestine.

Known for his accuracy and precision as a "railroader," Howard employs the same art in the management of his farm. He is illustrating the benefits of diversied farming to a marked degree. Of particular merit is the fine dairy herd he is developing. Among his live stock is a brood sow that has two litters a year. No small item of income is the annual yield of mohair from a herd of 27 Angora goats.

Howard raises the feed for all his live stock. His field crops this year were cotton, corn, cowpeas, sorghum and hegari. A good home orchard is being developed and much of this land is in pasture.

Snake Bite Is a "Cure"

Capetown, South Africa.—F. W. Fitzsimmons, director of the Port Elizabeth snake park, claims to have discovered a cure for epilepsy by inoculation of vaccine prepared from snake venoms. The remedy was discovered when an epileptic backwoodsman in Canada was cured after being bitten by a rattlesnake, Fitzsimmons said.

Afghan King Presses European Reforms

Kabul, Afghanistan.—Every week King Amanullah announces some new reforms for his country, whose social, military and government structure has been greatly altered since his majesty came home from Europe with new ideas.

Coeducation for children under eleven is one of the latest innovations announced by the king. Sports are to be encouraged by reducing the customs tax on tennis rackets and footballs. A state bank is to be opened, drug stores must use the Latin alphabet, the secret police are to be recognized and a civil aviation society brought into being with a yearly subvension of 500,000 rupees.

CHAMPION BILLIARD MATCH TO BE REPLAYED TONIGHT

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP).—Two great shot makers, Ralph Greenleaf of New York and Frank Taberski, the "gray fox of Schenectady," will replay their disputed match in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament tonight at Orchestra Hall.

The match ended abruptly Wednesday night when Taberski refused to continue, charging that Greenleaf had violated the rules, and, it was ordered replayed by the National Billiard Association, promoter of the tournament. Because of the personal feeling between the men and their ability to make difficult shots, the greatest crowd ever to see a billiard match in Chicago is expected to witness tonight's event.

Victory for Greenleaf would give him the title, a diamond medal, $2,500 in cash, a $3,000 salary for one year, 40 per cent of the gate receipts and all the trimmings that go with a title. A triumph by Taberski would necessitate another game as he was defeated once in the tournament whereas Greenleaf has a perfect record.

Marconi's Invention

When Marconi is credited with inventing wireless telegraphy, he is being given credit for something he did not do. He simply applied known electric forces and devices to the needs of commerce. Scientists were angered by his claims.

Local Dry Agents Find Two Stills

A raid was made Thursday night on a still at Middletown by federal agents from the Kingston office. The stills were located in a barn on a farm in the "black dirt" section. The plant was equipped with two 150-gallon stills, coil and condenser. At the time the agents in cooperation with Corporal Hanley and Trooper Thompson of the State Troopers arrived the operators of the plant were absent and no prisoners were taken.

In addition to the stills and equipment taken there was a quantity of hard cider and some fifty gallons of alleged whiskey. The plant was being used to manufacture apple jack and was camouflaged with old bags and similar materials to screen the activities from passersby. The plant was destroyed after samples had been taken. There will be a further investigation into the case.

Robby to the Rescue

Robby's mother had made a present of a toy shovel and sent him out in the sand lot to play with his baby brother. "Take care of baby, now," said his mother, "and don't let anything hurt him."

Presently screams of anguish from baby sent the distracted parent flying to the sand lot.

"What has happened to the baby?" she cried, trying to quiet the wailing infant.

"There was a fly biting him on the top of his head and I killed it with the shovel," was the proud reply.

Hawk Defended Nest

A California hawk in defense of its nest viciously attacked a man who attempted to touch it. The man, a Los Angeles gas and electric company lineman, was working in a tower on power lines near Saugus when he noticed the hawk's nest and shoved it over with his hand the better to do the work he was on. The bird attacked so viciously that the man lost hold and fell from the tower. He broke one leg, fractured two ribs and sustained numerous minor cuts and bruises.

Wait and See

"I hear you are not going to marry Mr. Newcomer after all. Why is that?"

"Oh, father thinks his position isn't good enough and mother thinks he is too old for me. My aunts think he is too good-looking to make a satisfactory husband, and my Uncle Jim says he has heard rumors about him. My cousins tell me he is a flirt, and I—"

"Yes, and you—what do you think about it all?"

"Oh, I think I ought to wait until he asks me."

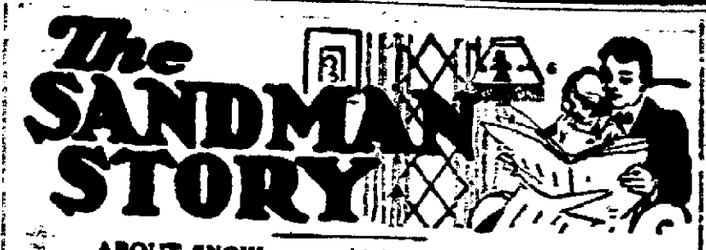
The SANDMAN STORY



ABOUT SNOW

"DON'T pay any attention to them," said Madame Snow. She was a beautiful lady wearing the loveliest of snow. Over her snow gown was a long white coat of the snow material and her hat matched. She wore white boots and long white gloves and everywhere as the sun shone down upon her you could see the jewels she wore and with which she decorated her clothes.

The Snow children were coming down to earth as fast as they could.

They were having a beautiful time. But it seemed the city people did not all want them.

"They are grumbling," said the Snow children. "They were talking about how hard it is to get about in a snowstorm in the city.

"They are saying that we will tie up traffic and that maybe trolleys will stop and that it will be hard to get about.

The Snow Children Were Coming Down to the Earth.

"They are saying that it makes it hard and awkward for them."

"Don't pay any attention to them," Madame Snow said again.

"I don't notice them. They don't treat me any too polite nor do they treat my family politely and so I am not here to consider or think of them.

"They throw soot about and coal dust and all sorts of things like that and they don't care if they ruin my lovely white frock.

"They don't care in the least!

"And if lots of them have to get out and shovel snow and exercise it will not harm them. It will give plenty of them good work.

"That is not Madame Snow's worry.

"Ah, no, I think of the children—the city children. And so I come to the city every once in awhile and bring you, too. I love the children.

"For even though there are grumbles in some spots there is more than enough joy to make up for the grumbles.

"The children come out with their sleds and they are happy as happy can be.

"They build snow men and snow forts and snow houses. They play games in the snow. They play 'house' and 'store' and all kinds of games.

"But above all they coast. On all the hills a little off the main lines they are to be found now. And in the parks and squares they are playing. In the parks particularly they are having such a good time.

"And just because of a few grumbles do you think Madame Snow is going to keep the children from having all this fun? Not for a moment. Not a bit of it!

"And, of course, you all must help her."

"We will, Madame Snow," the Snow children shouted, and their voices were clear and high and lovely.

"Then, too," said Madame Snow, "we bring beauty to the city people. We decorate ugly old roofs and dingy houses, we are very willing to go anywhere to improve it. Nothing is so ugly that we won't try to do something.

"We go to fire escapes and decorate them, and we go to leafless, bare trees and work wonders with them.

"We do lovely things to benches—we make them pretty and you know that jewel makers get ideas from the way we and members of the Icicle family decorate. Oh, yes, many a jewel in the way it is set is a copy from the way we do.

"And that pleases us. We like to help in the making of beautiful things.

"Many lace designs, too, are made from crystal and snow patterns we have made!

"The city tonight will be a lovely sight. It may be gloriously inconvenient to some—but even the ugly old light posts will be made to look so pretty. The dullest thing we'll help, too, to look like a bit of Fairyland.

"And that is what we do. We give everything a Fairyland feeling once in a while. We put the whole city into a fancy dress costume of glistening snow.

"But we must not pay any attention to complaints. For above everything else we must think of what we mean to children—and the city children will have their snow. Madame Snow will see to that."

SELF-FULFILLMENT

BY COMMON consent we recognize three ways by which every person expresses himself—the religious the economic and the altruistic. Normal self-fulfillment argues that a safe balance must be kept between these three methods of self expression. A close examination of any happy and successful life will disclose the molding influences which each of these forces had in determining that career.

Havoc results when one of these forces influence life to the expulsion of the other two. When religion so dominates as to render all other appeals ineffectual we have as a result the religious fanatic who is usually a nuisance. We may admire his sincerity but we seriously question his judgment and common sense. The religious fanatic does more harm than good to society.

When the economic urge so dominates as to exclude both the religious and the altruistic we witness the death of sentiment, a lamentable condition in the business world. The world of business today can furnish not a few illustrations where the sole object in life was to make money. Everything else having been made subservient to that end, the finer things in life were lost because of an inability to think in other terms than the economic.

The altruistic demands that we first possess before we can give away. Benevolence demands possession as well as the spirit of generosity. Self-possession in order to self-fulfillment. The well balanced life demands that all three forms of self-expression be assigned to their proper places. Such a well rounded life enjoys the confidence of the community and receives from it friendship and loyalty. To live such a life is a very high privilege.

Spending and Saving.

At the ends of the scale are the spendthrift and the miser. Both are wrong, we think. It is spending and saving in proper proportion that make up a sound scheme of life. Civilization means consuming as well as producing. In a broad sense, it is not what we make, sell or earn, but what we use, consume and enjoy that is our real income.—Farm Journal.

Snakes and Serpents

The difference between a snake and a serpent is that the snake is not poisonous, is cold-blooded and lays eggs. A serpent is poisonous, warm-blooded and brings forth its young alive. Adders or vipers have a V mark on the back of the head.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TRILLIUM AND NOSEBLEED

IF YOU lived in the country as a boy you were probably careful in your walks in the fields not to kick the great purple trillium; for if you did so you would have nosebleed. This is still a widespread country superstition. The American Folk-Lore society specified Vermont as one of the places where it flourishes especially, and where the plant is known by the name of "nosebleed." The great trillium has a flower, generally reddish or purple, suggestive of blood. The basis of the superstition is, therefore, evident. It is our old friend sympathetic magic. Sympathetic magic, as has been pointed out, works both ways—as it did with our primitive ancestors. Not only "like cures like," but "like causes like." Why it should be supposed to be a positive force in one case and a negative force in another is not explainable, but so has it been conceived from before the dawn of history. We hang red beads around the neck to prevent nosebleed, but by kicking trillium we produce nosebleed. But the inconsistencies of sympathetic magic are not the only ones we have inherited from the caveman.

Expansion of Heated Water

The action of water on the application of heat is different from that of other liquids. The volume of water decreases from 0 to about 4 degrees centigrade, and then it increases as the temperature continues to increase.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength today in the face of a further stiffening in call money rates. Prices of several of the high priced specialties were marked up 8 to 16¼ points while a long line of standard industrials and rails moved up 1 to nearly 6 points. Trading, however, showed a marked contraction in volume.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent and advanced to 9 when banks called about $25,000,000 in loans. The high rate is believed to have attracted sufficient funds to take care of all demands over the week-end. Time money was firm at 8¼ per cent for the shorter dates and 7½ for the long maturities.

There were several favorable dividend announcements during the day, including the resumption of payments on American Hawaiian Steamship Company and the declaration of a $9 extra by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co. Signing of the Boulder Dam bill by President Coolidge and the stockholders' merger of the Bank of Manhattan and International Acceptance Bank also had a bullish effect on market sentiment.

Merchandising shares continued to respond to reports of record-breaking holiday trade. National Bellas Hess ran up 16¼ points to a new high record at 197. Gotham Silk Hosiery issues ran up 8 points each, R. H. Macy 5 and Montgomery-Ward 4.

Radio ran up 14 points to 375, which is exactly 100 points above the low level touched in the reaction earlier in the month. Adams Express soared 12½ points, American International 9, Bordens 8½, and Johns Manville, International Harvester, Warner Bros. Pictures, and Allied Chemical sold 4 to 5½ points higher.

Renewed buying of Bethlehem Steel, which advanced 2¼ points to within a point of the years' high, was based on expectations of a resumption of dividends at the January meeting.

Rails also joined in the upswing, on buying based on the publication of a number of favorable November earnings statements. Chesapeake and Ohio led the advance with a gain of more than 5 points, while Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, New Haven and New York Central sold 3 to 4 points higher.

PRUNE GRAPES FOR FRUIT AND SHADE

Grape vines on arbors are usually expected to furnish shade and act as a screen as well as produce fruit. Pruning decides how well they serve these three purposes, states J. H. Clark, associate professor of pomology at the New Jersey experiment station.

A very light pruning preserves the density and general shape of the vines but is likely to cause poor, short growth and a small crop of inferior bunches. On the other hand if the vines are pruned severely, as they are in commercial vineyards the fruit will be of much better quality, but so few canes are left that very little shade will be produced in early summer.

The one-year-old, smooth-barked, light brown canes are the ones which bear the fruit buds. For best production of first-class fruit, a mature Concord vine should carry 40 to 60 buds after pruning. Where shade is desired this number of buds mays be considerably increased, although the clusters produced will not be so large. These buds may be left on a few canes, each bearing six to ten buds, or on a number of short spurs, preferably the former. Such canes should be tied in at least two places to prevent their being broken off by the weight of the fruit.

Old neglected vines will probably have new wood only at the ends of long, crooked trunks. If as much as possible of the old wood is removed, leaving only enough to support the one-year-old canes which were left to produce the crop, growth will be more vigorous, pruning will be easier next year, and the general appearance of the arbor will be greatly improved.

Pruning Practices in Various Large Orchards

Fall and winter pruning, as well as spring pruning, are more or less standard practices in large orchards in Eastern and Central states, and on the Pacific coast. Pruning at a time when other work is not pressing has been considered advantageous. In large orchards the work must be started in late fall in order to be completed before spring work begins. Investigators have shown that in regions where they were working there was no appreciable difference in the response of the plant to pruning at different times within the dormant season. Bedford and Pickering, reporting in 1905 on pruning work at the Woburn Experimental Fruit farm, England, stated that they found no appreciable advantage in pruning at one period of the dormant season in preference to any other. Chandler reports for New York conditions that generally no injuries resulted from fall and winter pruning, but that very heavy pruning sometimes resulted in injury. He states that at the Missouri experiment station no difference in injury had been noted on peach and other fruits from severe fall and winter pruning, even when the pruning was done while the wood was frozen hard.

Mulch Strawberries

Strawberry beds should be mulched the first time the soil freezes sufficiently solid to bear up a loaded wagon. Straw or hay to a depth of four inches should be applied over the entire patch. Brush may be used to advantage. Leaves should not be utilized, as they will pack so tightly under the snow that the strawberry plants will be smothered.

Horticultural Facts

Pruning should be done every year. The results will be more satisfactory and less time will be required than when the growth accumulates for a number of years.

• • •

The aggregate capital invested in an orchard is more likely to exceed $500 per acre than it is to fall below that figure, except perhaps for peaches, because of their early bearing.

• • •

If the far sighted peach grower would let his orchard stay in sweet clover for two or three years before setting it out those two or three years should prove very valuable indeed during the life of the orchard.

• • •

In a small orchard, when weather conditions are favorable, it is usually very practical to have a portable packing table, and sort and pack the apples just as they come from the trees.

• • •

It is just as important to keep the tools in first-class condition for work as it is to have a complete and satisfactory outfit.

• • •

Moderate pruning and rather heavy fertilizing will not only maintain or increase the bearing area of the trees but will increase the fruit production.

• • •

On most trees some heading back may be done. Don't "dehorn" the tree but gradually work down the head by cutting back the tallest branches to a good lateral lower down.

America's Gold Reserve

The amount of gold to be held for the redemption of United States notes is fixed at $150,000,000. Should this reserve fall below $100,000,000, the secretary of the treasury may sell government bonds to replenish it.

Coat and Jacket Both Fashionable

Each Has Place in Winter Mode; Milady Chooses Most Becoming.

As the winter season reaches its penultimate months it becomes quite evident that the short jacket ensemble vogue is no mushroom affair but a stable style which will continue to hold its popularity throughout the season and which will be quite as much the badge of chic in December as it is just now, notes a fashion writer in the Cleveland News.

Let it not be inferred, however, that the longer coat ensemble has been completely eclipsed. It is still very much among these smartly present. The principal feature of these longer coats is the definite silhouette which they present. In recent years it has been the custom for the dress portion of the various ensemble costumes to present the most concise silhouette features, while the coat was loose and gave only the vaguest hints of following any definite contour. But for this winter longer coats are so closely following the lines of the silhouette that they give the impression of a modified princess line. The coat is usually fitted from the shoulder to well below the waistline—it adheres to the molded line at the waist, fits snugly over the hips and then takes unto itself the luxury of a flare at the hemline, this flare achieved either through godets or circular lines. An interesting feature of these coats is the sleeve, which follows the entire wrap silhouette in miniature, even to the flourishing flare over the wrists.

Among the individual details which are presented in these long-coat ensembles are the combination of the wool dress and coat, as offered by Molyneux and Lanvin, the colorful liason, for formal affairs, of a blue coat and a beige dress, and the emphasis upon the hemline which curves up in the front, as exploited by Worth. Ensembles for afternoon wear mean nearly always a warm, comfortable coat of smooth elegant wool or of velvet, profusely trimmed with handsome fur, placed over a dress of silk or of light crepe or chiffon.

These woolen coats are, most of the time, straight cut, with diagonal slant or pointed stitched sections or tucked designs. The dresses worn with them are frequently made of Lunasol satin, plain or figured, with small or large round or oval dots. When the dress is of printed velvet the coat lining matches it, an old ensemble touch.

Charming Wraps Being Shown for Formal Wear

Wraps for evening are built to fit the gowns of different types and are of many different styles. The wraparound cape dolman, a soft and voluminous creation, with its long-wide sleeves shirred in a descending line from elbow to wrist, and with a high protecting collar of fur, is tremendously popular, because it is comfortable with different sorts of gowns. A contrasting model is made by Redfern from an antique Persian design in white and gold brocade, fitted at the waist, with flaring skirt and sleeves, and collar and cuffs of white fox. Molyneux is using regal brocades of satin and metal thread, in rich colors, lined with transparent velvet and trimmed with priceless furs.

As one stylist sees Paris it is all blue, and much blue in different shades is used. Starting with the Bal du Grand Prix earlier in the season, a wave of blue seemed to sweep over the fashion world. Some attractive shades of blue are being shown, as well as lavendar, purple and cerise asters, and the rich dahlia tints are being used in taffeta, moire, satin and chiffon. A lovely dance frock model is made of three shades of dahlia, in flounces that are bound in shallow scallops on the edge, the ruffles widening toward the back.

Voodooism May Explain Killing

Cleveland, Dec. 21 (AP).—Perplexed by both the identity of the victim and the motive for his slaying, police today believed some rite of voodooism would explain the killing and beheading of a man whose body was found in a basement here yesterday.

Instead of seeking the identity of the killer, detectives had to reverse the usual order of crime mysteries and trace the identity of the slain man.

They had under arrest Doss Wade, 57, a negro and alleged "voodoo healer," who told police he killed the man, but they were unable to learn who the victim was.

He told detectives he had beaten Nemo Gibbs to death with a gas pipe, robbed him of his weekly pay check of $35 and a watch, and then carried the body to the basement and severed the head, which he hid in a cupboard.

Gibbs, however, walked into the police station a short time later "very much alive." Then the "Doctor" thought his victim might be Gibbs's brother, William Gibbs, 25, but he, too, was found unharmed.

Detectives said Wade then refused any further information and they admitted themselves baffled.

The Australian flag is a blue ensign, the description of which is as follows: The Union Jack in the top left-hand corner; in the center of the lower canton next the staff and pointing direct to the center of the St. George's cross in the Union Jack, a white seven-pointed star (representing the six states and the territories of the commonwealth); in the fly, five smaller white stars, representing the Southern cross. A red flag, carrying the same markings, is used by the Australian merchant shipping.

Sweden in History

The place names of Sweden, many dating as far back as the Bronze age, and from viking times, are now being specially studied and it is expected that much light will be thrown upon many linguistic and historical problems in other parts of Europe, as the population of Sweden has remained practically homogeneous for thousands of years. The language spoken has always been Swedish, although Swedish literature cannot be said to have existed earlier than the Thirteenth century.

Japanese Art

One of the most famous pictures of Japan, now in the royal palace at Tokyo, is made up of four panels, three of which are blank. The fourth depicts a crow in flight just disappearing over the horizon. The painting was made at the command of a former emperor, and is considered a masterpiece, following the imaginative Japanese school of art in composition and movement. The single crow represents the last of a flock flying in a direction away from the center of the picture.

Nagy Case in Hands of Jury

The action brought by Joseph Nagy against Louis Laider of Accord to recover wages which plaintiff claims due him, was concluded in Supreme court at noon today and sent to the jury.

Plaintiff claims he was to receive $30 a month in winter and $45 a month during summer months. In addition he was to receive his board. The defendant claims he was to make a home for Nagy and give him money and clothing but he never agreed to pay wages. He first knew Nagy in Brooklyn, where Nagy worked for defendant as an excavation contractor and received city going wage. However, on the farm he was to work for his board and keep, according to defendant.

This was the last case to be taken up at this term and all jurors were excused by the court with the thanks of the court for services rendered. Judge Russell in thanking the jurors stated that this was one of a very few terms where there had apparently been such close attention to the evidence and such fair verdicts rendered that it became unnecessary for the court to enter into a case and set aside a verdict on the grounds of its being excessive or against the weight of evidence.

A great many cases have been disposed of this term either by trial or by settlement.

Cave With "Ballroom" Is Now in State Park

Sullivan, Mo.—A cave a half-mile underground, in which a Missouri governor held his inaugural ball, and several other caverns where fugitives of the Civil war hid themselves, are in the Ozark mountain cave region which Missouri has set aside as a state park.

The caves, a dozen or more, sparkle with onyx, limestone and marble formations, while giant stalagmites and stalactites add to the brilliance and eeriness of the underground recesses.

In Fisher's cave is an immense apartment called the ballroom. Here Governor Fletcher in 1865 held his inaugural ball. More than 200 couples attended. From the mouth of a tunnel the governor's guests were conveyed a mile through a winding passageway in a small car drawn by a mule.

Three Marooned In Lighthouse

Cleveland, Dec. 21 (AP).—Marooned by blinding snow and the lashing waters of Lake Erie just four miles from Cleveland, three lonely men today awaited a break in the weather that would enable them to get home for Christmas.

The three men—Harry Holsworth, his brother, Edward, and William Atwater—spend nine months of each year in the "Crib" four miles off the East Ninth street pier where a lighthouse marks the place where Cleveland obtains its water supply. Now the shipping season is over and they want to get home for Christmas.

A sturdy little tug, its nose pointed toward the crib was ready to make its annual trip to bring the trio back today but waves pounding against the steel sides of the structure made the journey too perilous.

Now the trip may have to be delayed several days and the three men face the possibility of remaining on their bleak "island".

English Castle Once Had Merman Prisoner

A curious legend is associated with historic Oxford castle, on the Suffolk coast (England), which recently came under the auctioneer's hammer.

Fishermen are said to have captured a merman not far from the castle, and the interesting monster, so runs the legend, was imprisoned in the castle keep, and an attempt was made to tame and humanise him.

The merman, however, was a "difficult" subject, and one dark night, when the efforts to tame him seemed about to be crowned with success, he escaped by some mysterious means from his prison, and was no more seen of man.

The castle is stated to have been built about the Twelfth century, and the imposing Norman keep with its three square embattled towers, the Norman pillars, capitals, and altar ruins of the old chapel remain, an ancient staircase still leading to the dungeons.

The commissioner of the Reichs- bank found there had been far reach- ing reorganization and rationaliza- tion of Germany's industrial system. Famous Italian Soldier Dies

Count Luigi Cadorna Commanded Italian Army From 1915 to 1917 —Studied Territory Where He Was to Fight.

Rome, Dec. 21 (AP).—The Stefani News Agency today reported the death of Count Luigi Cadorna, com- mander of the Italian army from 1915 to 1917, at his home in Bor- dighera.

The famous statesman and soldier, who has been seriously ill for the past week, died at four o'clock this afternoon. He had been suffering from arterial sclerosis and on Mon- day night was stricken with cerebral thrombosis.

Count Luigi Cadorna wore a mili- tary uniform for fifty-five years be- fore the decision of Italy to enter the great European war brought him forward to international fame as one of the great leaders in the struggle. The son of a man who had distinguished himself in mili- tary science, he also devoted his whole life to it, and when it was de- cided that Italy would engage in the war on the side of the Entente Powers against the Teutonic Allies, Count Cadorna, then Chief of the General Staff of the Italian Army, was not only the choice of the king and his advisers as the most able military genius, but was also ac- claimed by the people.

Born September 4, 1850, he was just under sixty-five years of age when Italy declared war on Austria in the summer of 1915, giving him the opportunity to apply many years of tactical study to actual warfare on a large scale, becoming within a few months the directing head of an army of 2,000,000 men, which he divided between service on the Austro-Italian frontier and assist- ance to the English and French at the Dardanelles.

One of the most remarkable points of Cadorna's career was the avidity with which throughout his life he had studied the territory along the northern boundary where the opera- tions against the Austrians were to be carried out. General Cadorna was a man of prodigious memory, often startling the other members of his staff by the ease with which he could enumerate in precise detail the difficulties and natural ad- vantages of the most obscure routes, paths and passages, especially among the Alps.

Possessed Exceptional Memory.

As one of many instances of his quick observation and exceptional memory the story is told of how, in the early days of the mobilization of the army in 1915, General Cadorna, while riding by a railway station in an automobile detected the fact that one of the cars of a military train which he saw at the station loaded with munitions was being sent along the wrong route. The mere number of the freight car had sufficed for General Cadorna to perceive the er- ror—although there were hundreds of trains moving at that time with munitions of war for all parts of Italy.

In 1921 General Cadorna was ask- ed to participate in the ceremonies attendant upon the burial of Italy's unknown soldier, but he declined to consider the invitation on the ground that it would offend his dignity to march in the procession behind gen- erals who during the war were his subordinates, but who later had become his superiors.

WOMAN LANDS IN JAIL BY PERSISTENT TALKING

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 21 (AP).—A woman's persistence that she knew something about the slaying of R. M. Brandon, wealthy undertaker, has finally landed her in jail. Now she refuses to talk to police about the Brandon case or anything else.

Police said that the young woman, Miss Lucille Towler, who is held on suspicion, had repeatedly telephoned them that she knew something about the case but refused to give her name. Finally dectectives laid a trap and discovered her identity. She was ordered held on suspicion pending an investigation.

Miss Towler, police said, was an acquaintance of a man held for ques- tioning in the Brandon case but later released and that was the only phase of the case that they could connect with her.

Brandon was slain in his auto- mobile on a downtown street one night three weeks ago and as the machine crashed into a fence an unidentified man leaped from it and disappeared. No definite clue has been found.

JUMPS TO HIS DEATH IN FRONT OF FREIGHT TRAIN

Gouverneur, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).— Isaiah Service, 53, jumped to his death in front of a New York Central freight train at a grade crossing here today.

Service was riding on the rear end of a motor truck driven by William Bugler. The truck and the freight train approached the crossing at about the same time. Service, fear- ing the truck would not clear the tracks, jumped. He landed in front of the locomotive. The truck cross- ed safely a second ahead of the train.

2 Years' Pursuit Ends in Arrest

Rochester, Dec. 21 (AP).—A pur- suit that had taken Rochester de- tectives to every large city in the east for two years was ended today by the arrest of Anthony Merlo, wanted for the murder of his bro- ther Ernesto of New York city, Jan- uary 10, 1926, while he was a vis- itor at the Merlo home here.

Merlo's return to the city he fled two years ago was avowedly to revenge the slaying of his daughter, Angelina Spitale, who was killed in front of her home November 14 as the result of a bootleg feud, accord- ing to the police theory.

Merlo stoically accepted his ar- rest and the charge of first degree murder he had successfully eluded for the past two years and fear of which had kept him from his wife and daughter.

"I came back only to take ven- geance upon the slayers of my An- gelina," he told police.

WITHDRAW OBJECTIONS TO AITCHISON FOR I.C.C.

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP).—Objec- tions to the confirmation of Clyde B. Aitchison of Oregon as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commis- sion were withdrawn today and his apointment was expected to be ap- proved by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Mon- tana, who was instrumental in delay- ing a vote in the committee on Ait- chison's nomination, announced after a meeting of the committee today that his complaints had been satis- factorily answered by the commis- sioner's testimony.

The Montana senator had felt that Aitchison had held up valuation of telephone companies for an unrea- sonable time. Aitchison asserted that the budget bureau's efforts to carry out President Coolidge's economy program were largely responsible for the delay.

In addition to Aitchison, the nom- inations of Claude R. Porter, of Iowa, and Patrick J. Farrell, of Washington, D. C., are up for con- firmation but no fight has been made on them.

Ban Smoking to Prevent Blast

Gas Explosions in London Streets Followed by Preventative Measures—Extent of Underground Damage Not Yet Determined.

London, Dec. 21 (AP).—Canvas bags and pig bladders were used today to seal gas mains against a repetition of the explosions which yesterday tore up nearly a mile of streets in the west end. The danger of further explosions remained and police, firemen and ambulance corps were stationed at various points.

The operation of sealing the mains consisted of boring down to the pipes through gas-impregnated earth, drilling a small hole in the pipe and inserting a canvas bag or a pig bladder which was then inflated. The canvas bags were used for the big mains and the bladders in the smaller ones. The inflations caused the bags and bladders to fill on the pipes.

The wrecked area was a busy scene all night. Hundreds of men employed by the gas, water and electric systems were engaged in remedying them and preventing extension of the damage. None of the customary street lighting could be used and the thoroughfares were lighted by improvised electric lights strung across the roadways.

About midnight there were signs that High street, one of the streets most effected, was sinking. Police hastily summoned the occupants out of houses, fearing the buildings might collapse. Nobody was allowed to sleep in any house on the street. Altogether some 400 families left High street and the neighboring streets.

It was found that the great force of yesterday's explosion was due to an iron gas main 48 inches in diameter from which numerous other pipes lead out. Many of these other pipes have now been sealed.

There was tremendous congestion of traffic in the west end when the theatres emptied last night. Several streets were blocked by automobiles and busses.

Police surrounded a wide area and ordered all smokers to put out their cigarettes and cigars. Placards bearing "no smoking" in huge letters were posted to warn the public of the danger from smoking while gas hung over the streets.

The full extent of the damage underground has not yet been discovered. It was thought likely that it would be even greater than surface rents indicated and that it might be at least three months before the streets were restored.

Fifty Chickens Stolen at Atwood

Fifty chickens were stolen from the Jacob Osterhoudt place at Atwood Wednesday. Mr. Osterhoudt, who is suffering with blood poison in his hand, left the place to visit the doctor and on his arrival home found the chickens missing. The thieves evidently had not heard of the ten year sentence recently imposed in Supreme court for chicken stealing or else they were desirous of enjoying a good Christmas dinner at any cost.

In Poland

Little Village Girls of Poland.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

THE passage of ten years as a newly independent nation was celebrated by Poland on Armistice day, November 11. Poland had a long history of independence before modern times, but the country's identity was snuffed out by Russia, Germany, and Austria more than a century ago, when those three powers divided Polish territory among themselves. The armistice brought back together the fragments of the old kingdom, and it has since functioned as a republic.

On the tenth anniversary of the new birth of Poland one might consider the statistics of this new-old nation—statistics which would show the mighty strides that have been taken to make up for the years of division. But let us take this for granted, and gain instead a few glimpses of the picturesque places and people of Poland's interior.

The nation offers no spectacle more colorful than the Sunday procession in Lowicz. In rude farm wagons and on foot, the peasants come from humble villages in the widespread plain whence Poland gets its name.

The abbey church, walled into a grassy inclosure, backs up to a great cobbled square. On fine Sundays, each of the three entrances is a hovering place for a rainbow whose colors, intensified by fixing them in stiff, sturdy homespun, bell out in broad skirts and bright aprons, below which even a peasant foot, if confined in a shiny high shoe with laces matching some color of the costume, has a pleasing grace.

The men, wearing long frogged coats and orange trousers stuffed into well-blacked boots, stand in sober groups, from which the eye is lured away by gleaming masses of creamy silken head-shawls, long of fringe and worn without a wrinkle.

On Sundays the peasants frankly "dress up," as unspoiled children do, taking pride in the newness of the fabric, in its stiffness and the brilliancy of its chromatic scale. Homely though the women are, sturdy rather than lithe, the calm assurance and downright pleasure, with which they parade their clothes makes the most blase visitor smile with them at this unblushing display.

Gdynia Is Its Seaport.

Gdynia is Poland's patriotic hope as a seport. At the end of the World war Poland was denied the ownership of Danzig, through which its seaborne commerce has ever come. The city was made free, under the League of Nations, however, to facilitate Polish commerce. At the same time Poland was given a narrow strip of a dreary, sandy stretch of the Baltic coast. On this coast, at Gdynia, Poland has been feverishly building a port, which it is hoped will become the main doorway between the republic and the sea trade of other nations.

Gdynia now consists of several piers, many incongruous villas, an ambitious band-shell, a bulky Pharos, and a fishing strand cobwebbed with nets. There are a casino and a hotel called the Polish Riviera. It is decreed that Gdynia is to be a pleasure resort, the rival of Zobbot as well as of Danzig.

Poznan is the most thoroughly Polish and the most modern city in the republic. One should see this cradle of the Polish race in a half fog which gives grace to the bulky palace of the kaiser, adds just the proper note of northern softness to the classic facade of the Raczynski library, and banishes the ugly from the buildings overhanging the Warta.

Poznan gives one an unusual opportunity to study the Poles, not because they are more Polish than their brothers in Warsaw or Lwow, but because, since they form 65 per cent of the population and are among the most progressive of their race, each can be less aggressively Polish than in a city where they form a bare majority of the citizens.

Along Poland's only natural boundary, the Carpathians, two salients project southward, one into the jumble of mountains called the Tatras, whose further slopes are in Czechoslavakia; the other to the bank of the Czeremosz, over against Bukowina. In these two salients are to be found two of the most interesting peoples in the Polish complex.

Mountain Resort and Salt Mines.

In the Tatras lies Zakopane, Poland's chief mountain resort, with a beautiful situation, several large sanitariums for weak-lunged patients, and the most charming group of villas in Poland. Many of them, though larger and finer, are built in the same "Zakopane" style as the modest wooden houses, which were there before Doctor Chalubinski "discovered" the place, in 1873, and the railway came, in 1886.

There are attractive promenades, plenty of mountains to climb, an active Tatra society serving those who don't do all their exploring by automobile, and up in the mountains a gem of a lake called the "Eye of the Sea." Either it is absolutely without bottom or the tradition that it is connected with the ocean is without foundation. But it is a very charming lake.

Near Wieliczka are the great salt mines of which all the world has heard—salt beds from which have been carved chapels, corridors, chambers and ballrooms. There is a huge chapel with rock-salt saints, well preserved in spite of their age. The rock-salt chandeliers have almost as much glitter as glass. There is a ballroom with a gummy floor of rock salt and a buffet as empty as the ballroom itself.

The chapel service is held once a year. The ballroom is used at infrequent intervals, but the post box is important. A man follows the visitors hundreds of feet below ground with a tray of souvenir post cards in order to induce them to use this abysmal mail box.

The prize city of Poland is Krakow. Jagiello came all the way from Lithuania to be baptized and made a Pole-in-law on the Wawel—Hill of Kings—after Casimir the Great, "who found a Poland of wood and left behind him a Poland of stone," had carried Krakow to such heights of glory as no other Polish city ever reached. It was rather Krakow's usefulness as a trade mart which won it continental favor and support.

The grain of Hungary, the silks of Italy, the amber of Danzig, and the spices of the East passed through Krakow. Men trusted their lives to yew bows from Galicia and her oaks furnished the framework for many a ship.

The City of Lions.

In Krakow there are other things more interesting than markets, but in Lwow there aren't. Lwow, Leopol, Lemberg, Leopolis, The City of Lions, The Nest of Heroes—the city has as many aliases as a confidence man. On the station is the inscription "Leopolis Semper Fidelis." Considering the frequent changes of ownership and government, either the "always" or the "faithful" must be poetic license.

Here and there in its wide area there is an outcropping of hills whose steep slopes are given over to beautiful parks heavily wooded with splendid trees. Barracks are everywhere. Lwow has never recovered from the role of fortress, which it has played ever since the Ruthenians built it as a defense against the Tartars.

Lwow's place as capital of a now and then autonomous Galicia won it many imposing buildings, upon which Italian architects and German sculptors lavished much skill. The old university, dating from 1660, has taken on new life with the coming of liberty. There is to be another, solely for Ruthenian students from East Galicia, where this "racial minority," separated by nothing but an imaginary line from 25,000,000 racial and religious brothers in the Ukraine, outnumber the Poles two to one.

FROM PARIS COME MATCHING SETS DEVELOPED OF COLORFUL VELVET

WHEN first the ensemble theme was exploited in fashion's realm it was rather regarded as of passing interest. To the practical minded it appeared more as a luxury for the few who could afford to indulge in the fastidious notion of matching this detail to that.

Today, however, women have come to realize that the ensemble idea is not only a matter of real economy, but the matching and harmonizing of the various items of one's costume carries with it the assurance of always presenting a well-dressed appearance.

Ensemble accessory sets this season are especially prominent on the style program. As to just what constitutes an accessory set is left to the imagination of the stylist and the wearer. The furrier this season is all enthusiasm over the new vogue of hat, scarf and muff to match, to which ofttimes is added a handbag of some one or other of the same flat fabriclike furs which are so smartly in fashion. The leather worker is absorbed in creating shoes, handbag and belts of matching colorful kidskin or snakeskin or some other selected medium. To the milliner, perhaps, the ensemble vogue opens up the most fascinating vista for the evolving of intriguing combinations worked in complement with the hat.

Velvet is proving a most inspirational medium for the making of hats, bags, wraps, neckpieces and, yes, shoes, if you so choose, which match. A likable and wearable velvet accessory ensemble is pictured here. The short jacket—and short jackets are the talk of fashiontown these days—is of navy rayon velvet. The youthful beret which tops this cunning coatee and the envelope bag are of the same velvet.

It is quite worth while to give thought as to the thorough practicality of this charming velvet trio. In black it would be even more wearable with various one-piece frocks, while in any of the new wine shades or dark greens or handsome browns it would be most fetching.

What with accessory sets coming in for such a share of attention, a channel of expression for new ideas is opened up to the modest dressmaker as well as the formal couturier. Shirred velvet sets consisting of neckpiece, muff and hat present a particularly alluring adventure to the home designer who is endowed with creative ideas and is a skillful needlewoman.

Some women are finding it practical to buy an unfurred coat, an accessory set to be worn with it.

HUSBAND REPORTS WIFE MISSING SINCE NOV. 26

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 21 (AP).—During the five minutes the husband of Mrs. Irene C. Mohney, 23, was absent from his seat in a Cleveland theatre November 26, she disappeared and today Mohney appealed to Buffalo police to aid in search for her. Mohney said he knew no reason for the disappearance other than a nervous condition or abduction.

Mrs. Mohney, whose mother lives in Binghamton, was described as five feet five inches tall; weight 110 pounds; slim and attractive. A scar from a burn was on her right leg between the ankle and knee.

LAST FLAMINGOES MAY HAVE PERISHED

Storm Believed to Have Wiped Out Colony.

Washington.—An expedition has been sent out from Andros island to search for traces of the last colony of flamingoes in North America, feared wiped out by the hurricane in September, Arthur Newton Pack, president of the American Nature association, has been informed.

From Andros island, off the Florida coast, Elgin W. Forsyth, commissioner and warden at Mangrove Cay, says two hurricanes passed over the flamingo areas and no doubt destroyed large numbers of the birds. He says he sent out an expedition in June to locate the flamingo colony because it was nesting time.

The men ranged the Grassy Creek area and reported seeing only three birds. He concludes: "I fear the bird life of the colony generally has suffered disastrous losses and the need of conservation is greater than ever."

Andros was declared a flamingo sanctuary by the British government after bird lovers of the United States and England became aroused at the wanton killing of the birds by natives.

"After the disastrous hurricane of 1926," Mr. Pack says, "Forsyth was appointed special hurricane commissioner for all of Andros, with the tremendous task of providing for the injured, homeless and starving natives. Then he hunted for his flamingoes and found thousands killed.

"Last year several hundred young were saved and watches were posted for the present season."

The Andros negroes, cruising for two or three months at a time in their sponging schooners, trap the flamingoes by breaking their legs with ropes and eat the meat.

Factory Foreman Has Knack for Needlework

Mount Airy, N. C.—A furniture factory foreman whose mother taught him in his boyhood how to darn socks has become an expert in embroidery and other forms of needlework.

He is T. H. Macey, who perfected his early training several years ago when, while a bachelor, he decorated his own rooms. Employing his idle time with the needle, he soon had created all the interior effects usually credited to the "feminine touch" in a home.

The work has become a regular pastime, just as in earlier days it was said of him that he would rather darn socks than pitch horseshoes with other boys in the alley.

Macey is married now and his wife is authority for the statement that his ability with the needle is not his only domestic accomplishment. He also is said to be a good cook and a cake maker par excellence.

Unger Changes Plea to Guilty

Was Arrested on Information Found in Files of Slain Gambler, Rothstein—Trunks for Which He Had Checks Contained $2,000,000 Worth of Narcotics.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Jos. Unger, on trial as agent of an international narcotics syndicate believed to have been financed by Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler, changed his plea to guilty in Federal court today.

Unger was indicted on four counts but on his change of plea two were merged and one was dropped. The remaining counts, possession of narcotics and conspiracy to violate the narcotic laws, carry maximum penalties of 10 and two years respectively. Sentence will be imposed on January 4.

Unger was taken from a train in Buffalo after two trunks for which he held the checks had been seized in Grand Central Terminal and found to contain $2,000,000 worth of narcotics. Federal agents made the seizure and arrest on information found in the business files of Rothstein.

United States Attorney Tuttle said that he would ask for a maximum sentence. He added that he had not yet decided what course to take about Mrs. June Boyd, arrested in Chicago, and Mrs. Esther Meyers, arrested here, who have been held as material witnesses against Unger.

The bond issue was authorized at a recent meeting of the common council and the proceeds from the sale will be used in improving the city water system.

Air Mail Pilot Dies in Storm

Huron, Ohio, Dec. 21 (AP).—The air mail lost another pilot last night when the plane of Leo J. McGinn, tossed by a 50-mile gale during a heavy snowstorm, plunged into an apple tree near here. McGinn was thrown from the cockpit and the plane burned.

McGinn, who lived in Maywood, Ill., was carrying the night air mail from Cleveland to Chicago for the National Air Transport Company. Most of the mail was saved, although it was badly damaged by fire or soaked with water or gasoline.

The aviator circled the town three times apparently trying to locate the air mail beacon. A moment before the fatal crash he tossed a landing flare from the plane. Then the aircraft crashed into the tree and into a barn. Five minutes later the snow stopped entirely and the sky became clear.

The pilot's body was found about a hundred feet from the wreckage. His parachute was intact. This and the fact that the motor of the plane was not shut off led to the belief that McGinn was not expecting the crash.

CHRISTMAS EVE IN ST. PAUL LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Christmas eve is the children's night in St. Paul Lutheran Church. With all their expectation for the Christmas day with its gifts is taken this opportunity to bring home to the child the old yet ever new story of the birth in the crib of Bethlehem. The program this year will again consist of recitations and readings, but in addition it is hoped to emphasize and vivify the Christmas story with three short dramas. The parents of all of cradle roll pupils are expected to be present with the children. The church will be profusely decorated with trees. These trees have been provided by the Astalos family, Frank Myers and the pastor. Mr. La Tour is in charge of the decorations.

Commerce Boomed by Methods of Counting

For ages even the most intelligent men could count only to ten or twenty, the number of their fingers and toes. Then sticks and stone counters were laid in rows to indicate and compute numbers involved in barter and trade. In the earliest civilizations symbols were employed to some extent, then in Egypt they had the happy thought of drawing a picture to represent each quantity. Thus, a frog equaled 100,000 and a man with arms outstretched in admiration signified 10,000,000. The Greek and Roman systems of letters for numerals were considered a great advance, but only the most learned could do any adding or subtracting with them. The decimal system was brought by an ambassador from India into Arabia in 773 A. D., and European countries got their numerals from Arabia in the Twelfth century. It proved popular right away and teachers of the new system were in great demand. Trade and industry, so long dammed up by a lack of any simple method of keeping accounts or doing business with persons at a distance, sprang into life—and the Commercial era was born.—Detroit News.

Porpoise Superior to Man in Size of Brain

The porpoise, usually considered a stupid creature, is now said to have a much larger brain than a man. This is a severe blow to man's pride in his well-developed cerebral hemisphere.

From the evolutionary point of view the porpoise is more highly developed than man, for after reaching the cat or dog stage of development it took up an aquatic habitation and underwent further evolutionary changes to suit its new surroundings. The foreleg changed to a fin, and the hind leg disappeared entirely. The skull broadened at the sides and shortened in front, so that the nose was forced up above the eyes, where it became a blow-hole.

The changes in the brain are being studied to determine how much they are due to aquatic environment.

THE FAMILY PORTRAIT

(© by R. J. Walsh.)

ADA SHAW, accompanied by her eighteen-year-old daughter, Barbara, parked the old car at the curb and entered the second-hand furniture shop. They were looking for an old chair to replace the one Jim had broken last night. She had warned him against that particular chair, but in the presence of Tom and Helen Martin he had planked himself heavily down and an absurd wreck had resulted. Barbara had shrieked with merriment as she assisted her father to his feet. She was at an age where she laughed easily.

"Mother! Look!" Barbara now exclaimed, pointing. Then as Ada turned to gaze at the object: "Isn't it great? Apparently just as good as Mary Warren's grandmother's portrait which was painted by Sargent.

Ada walked closer to the portrait. It looked old and the frame was massive. What a lovely old gentleman with his velvet coat, curling white hair and brilliant black eyes! The price on the card was ten dollars. Ridiculously cheap, and probably Mr. Jones could be induced to shave that a bit. Their living room was rather bare of ornament and such a picture would just fill the empty place over the mantlepiece.

For the next ten minutes Ada matched her wits against those of the shrewd little second-hand dealer. She sparkled with eagerness. Barbara, slim and piquant, watched her pretty blonde mother admiringly. There was no doubt in Barbara's mind that mother would get the picture for seven dollars—which she did.

The search for a chair was abandoned since they had spent all their money, and they went gayly home with the portrait. When they had cleaned off dust and fly specks and burnished up the frame it really seemed as if they had made a good investment. Mr. Jones had assured them that the old picture had come in a load of junk from another town, and feeling that it would never be recognized by anybody who saw it Ada mounted the stepladder and hung it over the mantlepiece.

"How does it look?" she asked Barbara, who was standing back to get the effect.

"Fine! Oh, mother! Let's pretend it's a noble ancestor. Mary Warren is always bragging about her ancient family. So is Mrs. Blair. That's the one thing they've got in common. I'm sure it will impress Mrs. Blair favorably to know we Shaws aren't without a family heirloom or two. Maybe then she won't be so averse to Dick's showing an interest in me. If—if I don't pull some stunt soon Mary Warren is certainly going to get him and —" Barbara's voice ceased abruptly.

From the top of the stepladder Ada looked down at her daughter. She understood.

"All right," she said laughing. "This is Uncle Lancelot. But you'll have to couch daddy."

"That's easy." With new assurance the girl ran to the telephone and called a number. After a cryptic conversation she hung up the receiver and then turned a radiant face upon her mother. "Dick's coming to dinner!" she cried.

Ada worked feverishly all the rest of the day. And Barbara helped, anxious for every detail. Yet at 6:30 when the boy arrived, she met him at the door, looking so fresh and dainty in her flowered frock that you would never have suspected she had been mashing potatoes just a few minutes before.

As Dick entered the living room he saw the portrait over the mantlepiece.

"Something new?" he asked after an instant.

"Something very old." Barbara smiled. "Uncle Lancelot. Isn't he a dear?"

"He sure is." Dick smiled back. "Looks like a—a true aristocrat."

"Oh, he was!" Barbara sought the portrait's face for inspiration. "He rode and fought and made love and won a fortune"—she glanced round the threadbare room—"which he lost. We adore his portrait. Don't you think my eyes are like his Dick?"

"No," said Dick, "I don't."

Dinner was a success. The veal cutlets were tender, the salad crisp. Ada was one of those wonderful cooks who can make a feathery cake without an egg if necessary. And Barbara took after her mother in that respect.

A beautiful simplicity and hospitality pervaded everything and the boy who was used to his mother's complicated housekeeping at the big mansion on the hill enjoyed himself immensely.

After dinner the young folks went to a "movie" and Ada and Jim were left to talk it over. Jim thought his girl was good enough for any man living, but Ada was afraid of Mrs. Blair, who preferred Mary Warren.

Things, however, seemed to be progressing in Barbara's favor when next day Mrs. Blair came to call. She had never been in the house before. But when she went away both mother and daughter realized that she would never come there again.

"It's all over as far as she is concerned," Barbara said despairingly. "She loathes us. She loathes Uncle Lancelot. When she wasn't staring at him she was hating us with her eyes."

That evening Dick didn't come as Barbara had expected. He telephoned that he was going on a business trip. Ada tried to believe that he hadn't left Barbara out on purpose until next morning his mother refused to speak to her. What had happened? What had gone wrong? She racked her brain to find an answer.

A week passed. Barbara grew pale. But she didn't once mention Dick's name.

Miss Jewett solved the mystery. Miss Jewett was the town historian. Ordinarily she couldn't see much, for she refused to wear glasses, but this time she couldn't help seeing, for a stray beam of afternoon sunlight illuminated Uncle Lancelot's portrait.

"Good land!" she cried. "Where'd you get that?"

"That's Uncle Lancelot," answered Barbara wearily.

"That's old Ike Blair!" snorted Miss Jewett. "I guess I knew Ike. He disgraced the whole tribe of Blairs with his cuttings-up. Landed in prison finally. When Mrs. Blair did over her house she gave Ike's picture to the junkman. And here you've got it over your mantle shelf."

Miss Jewett rocked with laughter while mother and daughter looked at each other with stricken eyes. Everything was accounted for now. No wonder Mrs. Blair had been disgusted. With a word of excuse Barbara left the room. When later her mother found her she was lying across the bed hoarse with sobs.

"We'll take that ill-fated picture down and burn it," cried Ada.

"No!" Barbara sat up. "I like him. I—I'm attached to him. Some day when I'm a white-haired spinster he'll remind me that honesty is the best policy still."

That evening Jim carried Ada away to the Martins, where she had a wretched evening, for her mind dwelt sadly upon Barbara. But when at 11 they returned they found lights, radio dance music and Barbara twirling gayly round, such a changed Barbara that her parents gazed at her in astonishment.

"Mother!" Barbara said. "Dick came just after you left. I sent him home only a moment ago—he's dead tired from his trip. We're going to be married in three weeks. Dick's so pleased because we found Uncle Ike's picture—he's been looking for it everywhere, even offered a reward. You see, Dick thought a lot of Uncle Ike—he used to bring Dick nice things when Dick was a kiddy. And so we want Uncle Ike to come and live with us—" Barbara looked with a shy flush at her mother. "Even if he hasn't been much of an ancestor thus far we're going to make him one for—for our children's sake."

Proof That Fish Are Not Without Brains

To call a fellow creature a "poor fish" has always been regarded as pretty much the acme of contempt, and yet naturalists tell us that the fish is by no means the harmless creature we have been led to believe it.

Fish have been made to come for food at the sound of a buzzer or a slight rise in the temperature of the water, says a London Tit-Bits story. One of the fish experimented with at the Plymouth aquarium was a blenny, which likes to make its home in a jar submerged in a tank. The temperature of the water was raised slightly, and 15 seconds later a worm was dropped in the tank.

At first the fish left its jar on seeing the bait, but before long it responded immediately to the stimulus of the rising temperature. Finally, an increase of only 0.4 degrees centigrade was enough; the fish came out of its home rapidly and eagerly.

After 20 associations between the sound of a tuning fork and the introduction of a worm into a bottle, one fish was taught to enter the bottle and wait until food was given.

Another, in a darkened room, learned to respond to the switching on of a light. A worm was introduced after a short interval. On the seventh day, a few seconds after the light appeared, the fish swam to the feeding place and remained there looking upwards at the spot where the worm was usually dropped. Finally it was taught to enter a bottle when the light was turned on.

Preparations of Milk

Many persons erroneously believe that evaporated and condensed milk are one and the same product. They really differ greatly both in use and method of preparation. Evaporated milk is merely fresh cow's milk from which 60 per cent of the water has been removed. Heat is the only preservative. Condensed milk is a combination of milk and cane sugar in a 2-5 can sugar and 3-5 milk proportion. In condensed milk sugar acts as the preservative, says a report of the Department of Commerce.

Chemistry and Cotton

The first noteworthy new application of chemistry to the cotton industry occurred in 1844, when John Mercer discovered the process now known as mercerization.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Dec. 21, (State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—Supplies of western New York celery were rather limited. The tone of the market was a trifle firmer and prices advanced. Trading was fairly active especially on stock fancy in quality and in good condition. Two-thirds crates of the best stock, in the rough, peddled out at $2.75@$3.25. On the same date last year sales ranged from $1.50@$2.25. Recent reports on celery holdings in the principal cold storage warehouses in the western part of the state were approximately 300,000 crates or about 150,000 crates less than a year ago.

The market ruled firm on fine quality, domestic yellow onions. Receipts were light and trading was moderate. Values, however, remained practically unchanged. Carlot business on consignments from the middle-western states was again reported as high as $4.50 per 100 pound sack.

Arrivals of state white Danish type cabbage were moderate. The market continued very dull and the demand was generally poor. Jobbing sales at various terminals at New York city and Brooklyn were consummated on the basis of $38@$45 per ton, depending upon the quality. Late crop cabbage from South Carolina peddled out at $1.50@$2 per one and one-half bushel hamper.

Receipts of state apples and pears were limited. Price changes were few and small with the demand only fair. The market situation continued about unchanged. Washington, Spitzenberg apples wholesaled at $1.35@$3.60 per box, according to size, grade and quality. Delicious realized $1.80@$3.75; Rome Beauty, $1.50@$2.75; Jonathan, $1.20@$2.10; and Winesaps, $2@$2.50. Oregon Anjour pears brought $2.80@$4.35 per box; Bosc, $2.40@$4.15, and Howells, $2.20@$2.10.

The demand for western New York cut carrots was very limited and in consequence the market ruled dull. Recent sales on unwashed stock in sacks of 100-pounds were made at $2.15@$2.65. New crop, bunched carrots from the west peddled out at $2@$2.75, mainly $2@$2.25 per crate.

Supplies of white potatoes were fairly liberal. The market continued sluggish at unchanged prices although the demand was very poor. Bermuda red variety potatoes in double headed barrels were selling at $7@$9.

CENTRAL HUDSON GIRLS ENJOY CHRISTMAS PARTY

The girls of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation held their Christmas party Monday evening, December 17, at the Home Service Auditorium on Field Court. Due to the illness of Miss Elizabeth Plank of the Home Service Department, Miss Calhoun of the Catskill Home Service was in charge of the dinner.

Following the dinner a sketch, "The Gift of the Magi," was presented under the direction of Miss Gertrude Falvey. The characters were:

Della ..... Ruth McLoughlin
Jim ..... Kathleen Meeker
Madame Safronie .... Helen Lauber

Santa Claus (Edna Knappen) then surprised all the girls by a visit. After distributing gifts and candy, Santa had a humorous present for each one which caused much laughter and excitement. Games were then enjoyed.

Girls were present from Catskill, Saugerties, Tannersville, and Rosendale.

LUTHER LEAGUES TO CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS

The Luther Leagues of Redeemer Lutheran Church are very busy arranging for the Christmas celebration. The Senior League will sing Christmas carols on Christmas eve through the streets of the city and at the homes of the shut-ins. The Intermediate League is supplying the Christmas tree outside of the church. The Senior League has purchased gifts for the inmates of the City Home, each member contributing two gifts. The members of the intermediate league are making gifts for their mothers, and a number are participating in the pageant to be given Sunday evening.

The Senior League will have charge of the Candle Light Watch-night service on New Year's eve, December 31, at 11 p. m. Before this service they will go on a flying visit to the homes of various members to be entertained in novel ways.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION AT CORNELL HOSE CO.

Albert Raichle, Ravine street merchant, who is a member of Cornell Hose, has donated to the fire company a large Christmas tree together with all the good things that go to make a Christmas party successful. The party will be held by the firemen at the engine house on Abeel street on Monday evening. A very large attendance of members is expected for this annual event.

Movements of Waves

Roughness of waters depends to a large extent upon prevailing weather conditions as well as configuration of the coastline and of the ocean bed. The ocean as a whole is not necessarily rougher than a small body of water forming a sea. Many inland lakes may become extremely rough during a prevailing storm. For instance, the English channel, a narrow and partially inclosed body of water, is known to be one of the roughest in the world. Undoubtedly waves attain a greater height in the open ocean during a storm.

At Sunday School

The five-year-old son of a South side resident had just returned from the ever eventful first Sunday school class and was being questioned as to what he had learned during the course of the morning.

His mother asked: "What did the teacher say to you this morning, Charles?"

The youngster pondered a moment before answering. Then he looked up finally and said: "The teacher said to keep still."—Indianapolis News.

On the Ark

Noah (in cabin)—"Water, water, not a thing in sight but water. I think I'm going mad." Mrs. Noah (entering from aviary)—"Oh, there you are, dear. The dove just brought in a postcard for you." Noah—"Great! We're in touch with the outside world at last. What does it say?" Mrs. Noah—"It's from your Cousin Fanny and she just writes: 'To Big Boy Noah—Oceans of love.'" (They had dove for dinner).—Kansas City Times.

Far From Perfect

"Why don't you call me a donkey and have done with it? You've hinted at it long enough," said the henpecked husband.

"It wouldn't be quite true," replied Mrs. Meek.

"I suppose not. I haven't ears long enough for that animal."

"Oh, yes, you have. You don't need longer ears."

"What do I need then?"

"Two more legs and a better voice."

Odd Mirage Effects

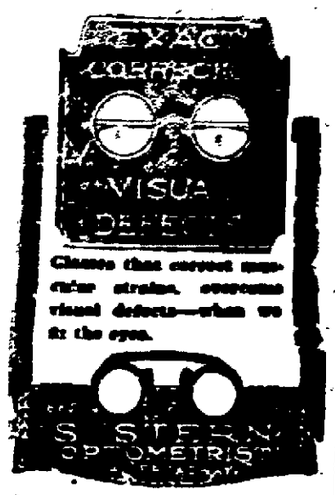
Among the mirage effects recently seen in the North sea were steamers well below the horizon appearing above it with a peculiar broken effect similar to war-time camouflage, and that of a barge reflected upside down in the air.

Ulster County Society Banquet

The Ulster County Society in the city of New York will hold its Thirteenth Annual Reunion and dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Fifth avenue and 34th street, New York city, on the evening of Saturday, January 12, 1929. Reception at 6:30 p. m. Dinner at 7:30 sharp.

The committee has made preparations for a pleasant evening and have decided to divide the time between professional talent and possibly one or two speakers. The committee would appreciate a prompt acceptance and forward the same to Holley R. Cantine, 501 Fifth avenue, New York city. Tickets for the dinner are $6 each. Members who have not paid their annual dues are requested to include the annual amount with their reservation check.

The officers and committee have two aims for 1929—first, the biggest banquet ever and second, a big increase in membership. Members can do their part by bringing a guest or if this is impossible, securing two new members.



Glasses that correct eye-strain, eyestrain, visual defects—when we fit the eyes.

They only had one penny between them, so they let both go on the scale at once, divided the total weight by two, and both went away happy.
